THIEF MADE A GOOD HAUL

But Was Captured Soon After the Theft, And is Being Held This Afternoon—John Birch, of Carrollton,
Lost $11 in the Deal.

The house of Mrs. Alexander Polen, on Center street, Wellsville, was broken into at an early hour Sunday morning, and $128.75 taken from a drawer of a dresser in the parlor.

John B. Birch was the only occupant of the room, and he was awakened at a little after 1 o'clock by a noise near the corner of the room where the dresser stood. He could plainly see the man bending over the drawer, and at once gave the alarm. The thief fled down the hall and was met by Mrs. Polen, who had no difficulty in recognizing the burglar as Ervin Busler, a brakeman on the C. & P. railroad, whose home is in Beaver Falls.

The thief succeeded in escaping from the house, but Birch in the meantime had started for city hall, where he notified the police. Officers Thorn and Madden, accompanied by Mrs. Polen, went to the home of Miss Kate Macbeth, in the lower end of town, where Busler boards, and found him in bed, apparently fast asleep. He denied having been away from the house that night, but was placed under arrest and the room searched. In a clothes press wrapped in a blanket was found $102, and it is thought he must have dropped the balance along the street.

The man was taken to jail until this morning, when he was given a hearing. He pleaded not guilty and the hearing is being held before Mayor Dennis this afternoon.

Mrs. Polen was able to identify the thief readily, as she had become acquainted with him at the Macbeth home some time ago. On Washington's birthday he borrowed $5 of her, and on the day of the Sebring-Taylor wedding, when he was one of the crew on the special train, he got another $5 from her, so that he knew she had considerable money. The amount of money Birch lost was $11.

The evangelistic meetings, which began yesterday in the Methodist Protestant church, were unusually impressive and largely attended. The Sunday school had a special program, with a full orchestra, and the exercises were full of interest. The public service in the auditorium at 11 a. m. was the feature of the day. A large class was baptized, after which the sacrament of the Lord's supper occurred. Prof. Evans, the blind singer, of Pittsburg, will sing to-night.

Lisbon, Mar. 4.—(Special.)—B. S. Ambler, as receiver of the Salem railroad, has filed a petition in common pleas court, against J. T. Brooks, asking judgment in the sum of $3,000 and interest from June 30, 1897. The amount claimed is sought as damages for the forcible removal of a siding on Broadway in Salem.

The suit made its appearance in court at Lisbon this morning. It is against Brooks as an officer of the Pennsylvania company and grows out of the placing of a switch on Broadway in Salem by the Salem railroad five years ago. The switch was placed by an agreement between the Salem corporation and the Wirsching Church Organ company, who owned the land, Ambler says he has never been in accord with the ideas of Brooks, either

THE ICE MOVES OUT OF THE OHIO

Anxiety of Boatmen and Property
Owners Along the Shore
Passed.

NO DAMAGE IN THIS LOCALITY

Navigation Can Be Resumed as Soon
As an Expected Raise Comes.
Twenty Million Bushels of Coal
Waiting to Come Down.

An anxious period for boatmen and those who own property along the river has passed and no damage was done.

The ice started moving out of the Ohio river this morning. The stream had been solidly closed for more than a week, so that many persons have been crossing on foot at various points until the warm spell made such a course dangerous.

The ice was expected to move yesterday, and did take a start shortly after noon, moving about 20 feet. The banks all day Sunday were thronged with people who were anxious to see the break-up, while the owners of the coal floats and shanty boats were busily engaged in preparing lines and arranging to avoid the crash.

At 1:30 o'clock this morning a loud report and a grinding noise told the anxious watchers that the ice was on the move, and it passed out of the channel quietly, leaving considerable shore ice. But, as a raise is expected during the night, this will not last long. At a point opposite the Metsch property an opening not over 100 feet was left in the ice, while above and below the whole channel was cleaned, but it was all forced out at 6 o'clock this morning.

Navigation, which has been at a standstill for three weeks, will be resumed at once, and the Queen City will pass up tomorrow.

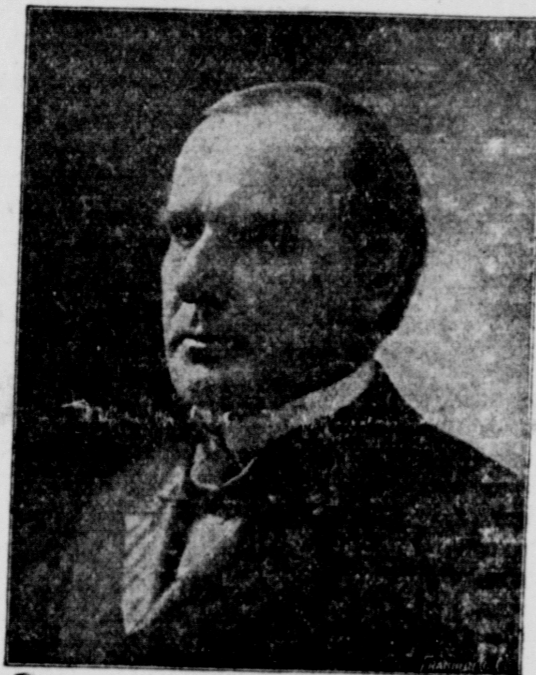

The rivers at Pittsburg were rising at almost every point yesterday and rivermen expected trouble from the ice. The towboats and loaded coal pieces now being moved cannot be taken from their moorings after the heavy ice once starts, as the thick cakes would jam holes in their sides and send them to the bottom in little time. The river coal combine, it is estimated, has in the neighborhood of 20,000,000 bushels of coal loaded in the upper pools. The gorge at West Newton, on the Youghiogheny, broke last evening at 5 o'clock, but did no damage. The largest of the ice gorges on the Monongahela is above lock No 9, and last night was reported to be still holding fast. It is from the breaking up of this gorge that the river interests have the most to fear.

as a railroad officer or as an individual. When Brooks ordered the removal of the switch he was compelled to recognize a provision in the contract that the switch remain until the property owners desired to lay a sidewalk. The case was brought into court here some time ago, when, the plaintiff claims, "the defendant, with utter disregard of good morals, deliberately imposed upon the court" by swearing that he intended to lay sidewalk. Ambler says the sidewalk has never been laid and Brooks only acted as he did to gratify malice and injure the plaintiff.

Wants the Board Mandamus.

Lisbon, March 4.—(Special.)—Trouble between the board of education and the board of trustees of district No. 2, in St. Clair township, terminated in a suit in court this morning. Oscar Birch, a resident of that township, brought the action and stated that the parties had refused for three months to elect a teacher, because the trustees recommended the appointment of one Croft and the board refused to confirm the applicant. In resentment of the refusal on the part of the board the trustees refused to take any action and Birch asks a writ of mandamus to compel them to choose a teacher. Birch has six children of school age.

In honor of the inauguration, the flag at city hall was flung to the breeze today.

he proposed seeing all he could. He confined his drinking to whisky, and it was not long until he didn't know or care whether school kept or not. Officer Dawson captured Jess in the Diamond, and gave him a ride to city hall. There was no session of police court yesterday, but McBee's father came down Sunday afternoon and had him released after putting up security for his appearance this evening, when he will pay for his fun.

The police were out yesterday with a determination to round up a few violators of the Sunday liquor laws. About 8:40 they had everything arranged to pinch Billy Morrow's place, which is located in the opera house block. When they got inside, headed by Chief Thompson, they found a nice batch of offenders. Beside the proprietor, William Morrow, the following lineup were notified to pay their respects to Mayor Davidson this evening: John Davies, Peter McGinnis, William West, Joe Keenan, Joe Burrows, H. J. McGovern, Howard Bettridge, Ben Conkle, Clem Maloney, J. Conkle, J. Downey, Joseph Price, "Fatty" Hughes.

Morrow will receive a fine of $25 and costs on a charge of keeping his saloon open on Sunday, while the balance will pay $9.60 for loitering about the place on the Sabbath.

Mayor Davidson stated this morning that this was only the beginning and that the movement would be kept up until every saloon man in the city came to understand that the law must be observed.

The Mason-Smith Case.

Another hearing in the Mason-Smith case will be had at Beaver next Tuesday, when it will be decided by the prothonotary whether the $250,000 bond presented by C. A. Smith will be accepted and the appeal taken. The bond is signed by William Banfield, of Beaver, and C. A. Smith.

EAST END. A ROBBER CAPTURED

The Smith's Ferry Burglar Has
Been Caught and Has
Confessed

ROBBED THE RALSTON HOUSE

Taking Advantage of the Family's
Absence at a Funeral—The Same
Residence Again Visited by Bur-
glar Last Week.

The culprit who robbed the Ralston house, near Smith's Ferry, several weeks since, while the occupants were attending a funeral, was captured by the united efforts of Constable Normile, David Ralston and James Fulton late Saturday evening.

He gave the name of Walter Messer and stated that his home at Mount Carmel, Pa. At the time of his capture he was wearing a suit of clothes belonging to Mr. Ralston and had on his person a ring stolen from the house. He offered no resistance and confessed the crime when Mr. Ralston recognized the property.

Messer refused to implicate any one else in connection with the robbery, and stated that he alone was guilty. This is not believed to be true, as he was cooking his supper when captured in a vacant house where it is believed a gang of tramps have made their headquarters.

Another theory advanced is that Messer was a member of the gang who make their headquarters at Congo, as he was traced to Chester a few days ago.

The Ralston house was again robbed last Thursday night, but little of value was secured. It is thought Messer was preparing for a third haul when captured. He was lodged in the county jail at Beaver and will be given a hearing this afternoon.

Big Postal Business.

Postmaster Baird's report for the month of February shows the following: Sales of stamps, $135.35; money orders, $1,117.56. This is the largest amount of stamps and money orders ever sold at this office in 28 days.

Lost the Run of the Calendar.

A Dixonville lady, who formerly lived in the East End, sent her little girl to town to purchase groceries yesterday. The little girl finally found a drug store open and learned that it was Sunday.

East End Notes.

The wind closed the door of Wilson's drug store yesterday afternoon with sufficient force to break a $5 light.

Miss Bertha Grant is suffering from a badly mashed finger, which was caught under a rocker yesterday.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. William Lawson died Saturday evening and was buried from the home yesterday afternoon.

Rev. J. R. Greene, who preached at the dedication of the new church in charge of Rev. Mr. Aikers in Indiana county, Pa., states that the church was erected at a cost of $27,000, and is one of the most modern in the state. Andrew Carnegie presented the congregation with a $2,000 pipe organ. The church is located in a rural district.

BONNET FOR MRS. M'KINLEY.

The Hat She Wore at Inauguration Designed in Ohio.

Columbus, March 4.—Mrs. McKinley wore on inauguration day a bonnet made in Ohio by an Ohio woman in competition for a $50 prize which she won. This bonnet was chosen from 5,000 designs sent in competition for the prize which was offered by a millinery trade journal. Its designer, Mrs. Agnes Holland, of Columbus, bought a photograph of Mrs. McKinley and studied the face carefully while she originated the design. She had seen the president's wife several times and was familiar with her face and coloring, both of which facts contributed to her success.

The hat is rather small, following in outline the popular flat shape of the day, and is made of jet tulle and fastened with fancy jet pins. Touches of silver gallow brighten it.

Burglars Raid Depots.

Kent, O., March 4.—A gang of burglars mounted on a hand car, stolen near Canton, came north over the Wheeling & Lake Erie railroad Saturday night, and raided the depots at Michler, Suffield, Mogadore and Brimfield. They stole money, tickets, baggage and express matter valued at about $200. At Suffield two general stores were entered and some goods stolen. From the trestle over the Cuyahoga river, in Kent, the robbers dumped the car into the water and escaped.

Stabbed in the Back.

Youngstown, O., March 4.—As a result of a dispute over a leasehold, Peter Sarver, a tenant of a farm near New Springfield, lies at the point of death from the effects of a knife wound in the back, inflicted, it is alleged, by Solomon Gross, owner of the property, who endeavored to dispossess Sarver.

BUCKEYE BRIEFS.

Two cases of smallpox at Youngstown.

O. S. Pollock has been appointed postmaster at Lucerne, Columbiana county.

There is talk of building an electric railway from Canton to New Philadelphia by way of Zoar.

Joseph Wardle, formerly of Bridgeport, was murdered by drunken Italians at Terre Haute, Ind. The murderers escaped.

A car became unmanageable on a down grade at Youngstown, ran away, struck an electric light pole and killed Conductor Frank G. Wiseman, aged 23.

While driving out of a barn at Barberton, George Eby, ex-chief of the fire department there, struck his head against a beam and was fatally injured.

There is not an empty house in Empire, and hardly a day passes without inquiries for houses to rent. There will be considerable building this spring.

Bertrand Bell, 26 years of age, said to be a New York millionaire, is learning the practical side of railroading by working in the B. & O. Southwest shops in Chillicothe.

Fire started in the Sutliff block, at Warren Sunday and caused losses aggregating $10,000. Mrs. Priscilla Shoenberger was rescued from a third-story window by firemen just in time to save her life.

Plans have been completed for the sale of 30,000 acres of coal land in Belmont county, O., to the Empire Coal and Coke company, of Wheeling. The options call for the outlay of at least $360,000 for coal under the ground.

Steubenville council will probably accept the bid of George A. Maxwell for the Pleasant Heights Street railway franchise. Maxwell and Clarence H. Stroble, of Pittsburgh, have purchased 53 acres of land at Pleasant Heights and have options on more.

Fatal Fire at a Pottery.

Marion, Ind., March 4.—Fire at Gas City destroyed the Gas City pottery works, causing $6,000 loss. One fireman was killed and others badly injured. D. C. Cox, owner of the pottery, was seriously injured by falling debris.

TELEPHONE DECISION

In Favor of the Independent
Telephone Companies.

DEFEATS BELL CO.'S PATENT

United States Court Decides That the Microphone Transmitter Can Be Used By Anybody—No Monopoly
Allowed.

An important decision handed down by Judge Brown, of the United States court for the northern district of Massachusetts, removes all question of the right of independent telephone companies to make and to use the best and most approved apparatus known. This is the outcome of the suit of the American Bell Telephone company against the National Telephone company, a manufacturing concern, of Boston, Mass. This suit was fought to prolong the life of the patent on telephone transmitters until 1908. This, however, disposes of the matter and the court held that the use of the microphone is open to any one in the United States.

The American Bell Telephone company and its allies have endeavored to make great capital out of the litigation. The suit was instituted in July, 1895, and has just now received its first decision, although the Bell people have practically ceased to urge their claims to the patent. The question has been one of merit for the last two years. However, it is a relief to the independent people to have a decision in this case favorable to their interests and annulling the Bell patent which is the effect of the ruling made by Judge Brown. It clears the atmosphere and everybody knows just where they are.

NEW RAILS FOR THE C. & P.

Report That the Old Will Be Taken
Up And Replaced.

A report from Cleveland is to the effect that nearly all the rails on the C. & P. are to be taken up, for the reason that they are not heavy enough to stand the pressure of the immense freight traffic over that line. They are 70-pound rails and are still in perfect condition, except the ends, which are flared.

These flared ends will be cut off and the rails will then be transferred to the C. A. & C., and put down there, as they are heavy enough for the work of that line. The C. A. & C., however, is to be very greatly improved, and many of the grades will be remedied, and curves somewhat straightened.

A ROBBER CAPTURED

The Smith's Ferry Burglar Has Baen Caught and Has
Confessed

ROBBED THE RALSTON HOUSE

Taking Advantage of the Family's
Absence at a Funeral—The Same
Residence Again Visited by Bur-
glar Last Week.

The culprit who robbed the Ralston house, near Smith's Ferry, several weeks since, while the occupants were attending a funeral, was captured by the united efforts of Constable Normile, David Ralston and James Fulton late Saturday evening.

He gave the name of Walter Messer and stated that his home at Mount Carmel, Pa. At the time of his capture he was wearing a suit of clothes belonging to Mr. Ralston and had on his person a ring stolen from the house. He offered no resistance and confessed the crime when Mr. Ralston recognized the property.

Messer refused to implicate any one else in connection with the robbery, and stated that he alone was guilty. This is not believed to be true, as he was cooking his supper when captured in a vacant house where it is believed a gang of tramps have made their headquarters.

Another theory advanced is that Messer was a member of the gang who make their headquarters at Congo, as he was traced to Chester a few days ago.

The Ralston house was again robbed last Thursday night, but little of value was secured. It is thought Messer was preparing for a third haul when captured. He was lodged in the county jail at Beaver and will be given a hearing this afternoon.

Big Postal Business.

Postmaster Baird's report for the month of February shows the following: Sales of stamps, $135.35; money orders, $1,117.56. This is the largest amount of stamps and money orders ever sold at this office in 28 days.

Lost the Run of the Calendar.

A Dixonville lady, who formerly lived in the East End, sent her little girl to town to purchase groceries yesterday. The little girl finally found a drug store open and learned that it was Sunday.

East End Notes.

The wind closed the door of Wilson's drug store yesterday afternoon with sufficient force to break a $5 light.

Miss Bertha Grant is suffering from a badly mashed finger, which was caught under a rocker yesterday.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. William Lawson died Saturday evening and was buried from the home yesterday afternoon.

Rev. J. R. Greene, who preached at the dedication of the new church in charge of Rev. Mr. Aikers in Indiana county, Pa., states that the church was erected at a cost of $27,000, and is one of the most modern in the state. Andrew Carnegie presented the congregation with a $2,000 pipe organ. The church is located in a rural district.

BONNET FOR MRS. M'KINLEY.

The Hat She Wore at Inauguration Designed in Ohio.

Columbus, March 4.—Mrs. McKinley wore on inauguration day a bonnet made in Ohio by an Ohio woman in competition for a $50 prize which she won. This bonnet was chosen from 5,000 designs sent in competition for the prize which was offered by a millinery trade journal. Its designer, Mrs. Agnes Holland, of Columbus, bought a photograph of Mrs. McKinley and studied the face carefully while she originated the design. She had seen the president's wife several times and was familiar with her face and coloring, both of which facts contributed to her success.

The hat is rather small, following in outline the popular flat shape of the day, and is made of jet tulle and fastened with fancy jet pins. Touches of silver galoon brighten it.

Burglars Raid Depots.

Kent, O., March 4.—A gang of burglars mounted on a hand car, stolen near Canton, came north over the Wheeling & Lake Erie railroad Saturday night, and raided the depots at Michler, Suffield, Mogadore and Brimfield. They stole money, tickets, baggage and express matter valued at about $200. At Suffield two general stores were entered and some goods stolen. From the trestle over the Cuyahoga river, in Kent, the robbers dumped the car into the water and escaped.

Stabbed in the Back.

Youngstown, O., March 4.—As a result of a dispute over a leasehold, Peter Sarver, a tenant of a farm near New Springfield, lies at the point of death from the effects of a knife wound in the back, inflicted, it is alleged, by Solomon Gross, owner of the property, who endeavored to dispossess Sarver.

BUCKEYE BRIEFS.

Two cases of smallpox at Youngstown.

O. S. Pollock has been appointed postmaster at Lucerne, Columbiana county.

There is talk of building an electric railway from Canton to New Philadelphia by way of Zoar.

Joseph Wardle, formerly of Bridgeport, was murdered by drunken Italians at Terre Haute, Ind. The murderers escaped.

A car became unmanageable on a down grade at Youngstown, ran away, struck an electric light pole and killed Conductor Frank G. Wiseman, aged 23.

While driving out of a barn at Barberton, George Eby, ex-chief of the fire department there, struck his head against a beam and was fatally injured.

There is not an empty house in Empire, and hardly a day passes without inquiries for houses to rent. There will be considerable building this spring.

Bertrand Bell, 26 years of age, said to be a New York millionaire, is learning the practical side of railroading by working in the B. & O. Southwestern shops in Chillicothe.

Fire started in the Sutliff block, at Warren Sunday and caused losses aggregating $10,000. Mrs. Priscilla Shoenberger was rescued from a third-story window by firemen just in time to save her life.

Plans have been completed for the sale of 30,000 acres of coal land in Belmont county, O., to the Empire Coal and Coke company, of Wheeling. The options call for the outlay of at least $360,000 for coal under the ground.

Steubenville council will probably accept the bid of George A. Maxwell for the Pleasant Heights Street railway franchise. Maxwell and Clarence H. Stroble, of Pittsburg, have purchased 53 acres of land at Pleasant Heights and have options on more.

Fatal Fire at a Pottery.

Marion, Ind., March 4.—Fire at Gas City destroyed the Gas City pottery works, causing $6,000 loss. One fireman was killed and others badly injured. D. C. Cox, owner of the pottery, was seriously injured by falling debris.

TELEPHONE DECISION

In Favor of the Independent
Telephone Companies.

DEFEATS BELL CO.'S PATENT

United States Court Decides That the Microphone Transmitter Can Be
Used By Anybody—No Monopoly
Allowed.

An important decision handed down by Judge Brown, of the United States court for the northern district of Massachusetts, removes all question of the right of independent telephone companies to make and to use the best and most approved apparatus known. This is the outcome of the suit of the American Bell Telephone company against the National Telephone company, a manufacturing concern, of Boston, Mass. This suit was fought to prolong the life of the patent on telephone transmitters until 1908. This, however, disposes of the matter and the court held that the use of the microphone is open to any one in the United States.

The American Bell Telephone company and its allies have endeavored to make great capital out of the litigation. The suit was instituted in July, 1895, and has just now received its first decision, although the Bell people have practically ceased to urge their claims to the patent. The question has been one of merit for the last two years. However, it is a relief to the independent people to have a decision in this case favorable to their interests and annulling the Bell patent which is the effect of the ruling made by Judge Brown. It clears the atmosphere and everybody knows just where they are.

NEW RAILS FOR THE C. & P.

Report That the Old Will Be Taken
Up And Replaced.

A report from Cleveland is to the effect that nearly all the rails on the C. & P. are to be taken up, for the reason that they are not heavy enough to stand the pressure of the immense freight traffic over that line. They are 70-pound rails and are still in perfect condition, except the ends, which are flared.

These flared ends will be cut off and the rails will then be transferred to the C. & P. and put down there, as they are heavy enough for the work of that line. The C. & P., however, is to be very greatly improved, and many of the grades will be remedied, and curves somewhat straightened.

Reward for Bates' Capture.

The Jefferson county commissioners offer a reward of $250 for the apprehension of Matthew Bates, who is charged with the murder of Corporal John W. Stainbaugh, United States army.

GEON ACQUITTED.

Result of the Trial of a Local Grocer on the Charge of Selling Oleo.

Ed A. Geon returned to this city Saturday evening from Lisbon, where he had been tried before a jury on a charge brought by the state dairy and food department for selling oleo-margarine.

The case was set for trial on Friday afternoon, but some difficulty was experienced in empaneling a jury. This was completed at about 7 o'clock Friday evening, and the session lasted until 11 o'clock.

The interested parties were compelled to adjourn the hearing to the county court room on account of the large attendance at the trial. Attorneys Fawcett and J. A. Martin represented the state, while Messrs. Steele, of Columbus, and Judge Moore, of Lisbon, looked after Mr. Geon's interests.

The Lisbon correspondent sending out the first report of the case was in error regarding the Capitol City Dairy company's connection with the affair, as Mr. Geon stated Saturday night that although the dairy people assisted in the defense, he never had any positive guarantee that they would, and had he lost the case there was nothing to compel the company to pay the penalty. He doubted whether they would have done so had the decision been different.

When the trial was resumed on Saturday morning at 8:30 o'clock the court room was almost filled with grocermen and others interested in the outcome. Miss Virginia Hobbs, of Hancock county, W. Va., was the principal witness for the state, although the prosecution did not succeed in developing anything of a damaging nature by her testimony, Attorney Steele bringing out the fact that the girl had been retained by Inspector Cowen to buy the stuff that he might avoid being known in the transaction. The attorney also succeeded in confusing the witness to such an extent that she testified to many things the state's attorneys did not intend that she should tell, so that it was apparent, as in the case against Frank Kratz in this city some time ago, that the defendant would be acquitted.

The case went to the jury at about 4 o'clock and they were out an hour and a half, returning a verdict of acquittal.

Her son found the dead body late in the evening when he came home from his work.

Mrs. Gilson was the wife of the late Richard Gilson, who a few years ago lost his life by falling on a hay fork. She leaves a son, grown to manhood and a daughter who married Mr. Frazer and lives in Lisbon. She gave no intimation to anyone of her purpose.

CARMAN OUT ON BAIL.

Sick American Contractor Furnished $10,000 Cash Bail in Manila.

Manila, March 4.—By direction of Major General MacArthur, D. M. Carman, an American contractor, who was taken into custody in February charged with aiding the Philippine insurgents, has been released on $10,000 cash bail. Major Kulp, medical officer, certified that Carman was a very sick man, and that further confinement was apt to cause his death.

Brigadier General G. W. Davis, provost marshal of Manila, says that the case had been very carefully considered before the release was ordered, as it established the precedent in the Philippines of permitting persons charged with aiding and abetting the insurrection to be at large. Carman is under surveillance in Manila and can be brought to court whenever he is wanted.

THE ACT OF A HERO.

He Snatched a Life Out of a Pool of Molten Metal.

Three men came up carrying a long iron shaft, which had been cut in two, so that an iron ring could be inserted between the two halves. An empty crucible a foot wide and deep hung in the ring. The forward end of the pole held a crossbar, making it, as it were, a huge T. Two men held the T part of the pole; the third grasped the rear end. The crucible hung between. The remainder of the molten metal from the caldron was tipped into one crucible, and the men trotted off with it, the two in front with strained faces, the man behind driving them complacently, the oddest team in the world. He steered them through a doorway, and they emptied their crucible into a small mold. As they went they kept step in an unusual manner. Instead of stepping out right foot with right foot the left man's right leg and the right man's left leg went forward together, knee with knee, foot with foot. We asked why.

"Of course such a thing never happened?"

"Yes, it did once. One of the men went down. The other jumped clear, but the fellow on the floor swam in it."

"Horrible! Of course he died instantly, poor man?"

"No," the foreman of the carrying gang, taking in the situation, made several terrific leaps for him, jumped right into the middle of it, picked him up and threw him out of it bodily. Then he jumped clear himself, with the stuff dropping from his shoes. They both went to the hospital, but they are all right now. Heroic, wasn't it? By the way, that's him, the foreman, Jim H., over there now. He is still looking after those fellows."

We looked over to where a big muscular fellow was directing a gang of men manipulating molten metal. He was not disfigured, and he did not look like a hero, but thereafter the grime that covered him seemed noble indeed, and he would not say a word of his feat when we sought to talk with him about it. But Jim H. will probably never want for a job as long as Baldwin's is working.—From an Article on the Baldwin Locomotive Works in Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly.

Too Much For the Cab.

One of the wealthiest wine merchants in Paris and also one of its stoutest citizens was the hero of an episode which caused much laughter in the Rue Princesse.

M. R., the corpulent man, hailed a cab, which came alongside the curb. He opened the door and, getting a purchase on the railing of "cabby's" seat, tried to hoist himself in.

But his weight was too much for the vehicle, which careened over and, as the sidewalk is very narrow, crashed into a window of a printing office. M. R. had meanwhile collapsed on the ground, and "cabby" by a miracle clung to his uncertain perch.

Then followed a stormy period. The printer came out and wanted to have the price of his broken window, the fat man tried to get the cabby to drive him away, and cabby refused to take any such load on board.

Finally all parties adjourned to the police station, where the difficulty was straightened out, and M. R. set to work looking for another cab.—Paris Temps.

With Emphasis.

"Say, Joe," remarked Stroller, who was anxious for a jaunt, "what do you say to a tramp after dinner?" "Generally," replied Joe Kose, "I say, 'Get out, or I'll turn the dog on to you.'"—Philadelphia Record.

The remainder of the molten metal from the caldron was tipped into one crucible, and the men trotted off with it, the two in front with strained faces, the man behind driving them complacently, the oddest team in the world. He steered them through a doorway, and they emptied their crucible into a small mold. As they went they kept step in an unusual manner. Instead of stepping out right foot with right foot the left man's right leg and the right man's left leg went forward together, knee with knee, foot with foot. We asked why.

"Of course such a thing never happened?"

"Yes, it did once. One of the men went down. The other jumped clear, but the fellow on the floor swam in it."

"Horrible! Of course he died instantly, poor man?"

"No; the foreman of the carrying gang, taking in the situation, made several terrific leaps for him, jumped right into the middle of it, picked him up and threw him out of it bodily. Then he jumped clear himself, with the stuff dropping from his shoes. They both went to the hospital, but they are all right now. Heroic, wasn't it? By the way, that's him, the foreman, Jim H., over there now. He is still looking after those fellows."

We looked over to where a big muscular fellow was directing a gang of men manipulating molten metal. He was not disfigured, and he did not look like a hero, but thereafter the grime that covered him seemed noble indeed, and he would not say a word of his feat when we sought to talk with him about it. But Jim H. will probably never want for a job as long as Baldwin's is working.—From an Article on the Baldwin Locomotive Works in Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly.

Too Much For the Cab.

One of the wealthiest wine merchants in Paris and also one of its stoutest citizens was the hero of an episode which caused much laughter in the Rue Princesse.

M. R., the corpulent man, hailed a cab, which came alongside the curb. He opened the door and, getting a purchase on the railing of "cabby's" seat, tried to hoist himself in.

But his weight was too much for the vehicle, which careened over and, as the sidewalk is very narrow, crashed into a window of a printing office. M. R. had meanwhile collapsed on the ground, and "cabby" by a miracle clung to his uncertain perch.

Then followed a stormy period. The printer came out and wanted to have the price of his broken window, the fat man tried to get the cabby to drive him away, and cabby refused to take any such load on board.

Finally all parties adjourned to the police station, where the difficulty was straightened out, and M. R. set to work looking for another cab.—Paris Temps.

With Emphasis.

"Say, Joe," remarked Stroller, who was anxious for a jaunt, "what do you say to a tramp after dinner?" "Generally," replied Joe Kose, "I say, 'Get out, or I'll turn the dog on to you.'"—Philadelphia Record.

MONDAY, MARCH 4, 1901.

FOUR YEARS MORE.

The first administration of William McKinley closed today. It has included an eventful period in American history. A war with a foreign power has been fought, the first in more than half a century. Cuba has been freed from oppression and started on the road to independence. New laurels have been won for the American army and navy, and the territory over which the American flag floats has been extended.

For the first time in our history, the United States, by the fortunes of war, has been compelled to assume the government and control of a distant, old world territory. The United States has risen to new dignity and won new respect in the family of nations. We are recognized as one of the great powers of the world. To say that there have been no mistakes in the management of war affairs and of the Philippine question would be unreasonable. But such mistakes as have been made were neither great nor glaring. There has been no national humiliation; on the contrary, there has arisen among our own people, as among all nations, increased respect for the American flag and for American statesmanship.

Throughout the most trying period in our recent history the country has prospered as never before, every branch of home industry extending and flourishing, while our foreign commerce has acquired an importance exceeding every expectation.

William McKinley has proven himself a wise and conservative president, acting always with vigilance and prudence for the interests of the people and for the honor of the United States. There are problems only partially solved, which must be disposed of during his second administration, but American statesmanship is equal to the task. None of the questions remaining are so difficult, nor are any so difficult likely to arise, as those which have been solved, wisely and well, in the past four years.

The people have every confidence in the president and his advisers, as was shown by election results last fall, and look with pride and thankfulness upon the imposing ceremonies which are taking place in Washington today. With a senate and house both Republican and likely to continue so, the inauguration today of the tried and trusted McKinley as president and the gifted and courageous Roosevelt as vice president furnishes an assurance that the nation's interests will be carefully looked after, for another four years at least, and that the current of prosperity, now flowing so strongly, is not likely to be impeded or diverted to our disadvantage.

WORK OF CONGRESS.

The Fifty-sixth congress has passed into history. It has not done all that it was expected to do, and neither has any of its predecessors. But it has redeemed Republican pledges and given the nation a sound currency law which has the approval of the ablest business men in America and the soundest students of financial affairs. For this, if for no other reason, it deserves a nation's thanks. Another important work, performed by congress in the closing hours, was the reduction of the so-called war taxes. By this legislation, not only will $40,000,000 a year be saved to the people, but an endless amount of annoyance. Particularly will the relief from vexatious stamps now required on checks, receipts, telegrams, etc., be welcome. Nobody objected to paying his share of war taxes when the war was on and the nation needed the money. But now that the need is past, curtailment is wise. Too much money in the treasury is usually an incentive to extravagance, whereas economy should ever be the watchword, and all unnecessary burdens on the people's shoulders be avoided.

Those who went to Washington to see Teddy Roosevelt in a cowboy rig, riding a bucking broncho, were probably disappointed. Vice President Roosevelt has left all that behind him and for the next four years will be a dignified statesman. He has the qualities which the American people dearly love, and the idea that a man of his intellectual brilliancy and moral courage will sink into obscurity in the vice presidential office is preposterous.

Golden Rule Jones, of Toledo, has started another non-partisan movement. Its object is to re-elect Jones. If it meets with the fate that his gubernatorial boom did, it will not attract widespread attention.

Maude Gonne, the "Irish Joan of Arc," is a true Hibernian with a bump of combativeness largely developed.

It's a proud day for Ohio.

ABOUT THE POTTERIES.

The decorating department of the Burford pottery is rushed with orders just at present, and an additional printer has been put on.

A number of employees of the National plant, who have been idle during the past week, have resumed work.

The workmen employed by the Erie Roofing company, which is placing the rock asbestos roof on the Laughlin No. 2 pottery, have made rapid progress and expect to complete their work in two weeks. The company has also secured the contract for placing a slate roof on the new library.

Local union No. 16, saggermakers, will hold a smoker in their rooms this evening, to which all the other organizations have been invited. The saggermakers have been organized for several years, and this is their first effort in that line. The local has almost doubled its membership within the past few months and is now one of the leading organizations affiliated with the Brotherhood.

New laurels have been won for the American army and navy, and the territory over which the American flag floats has been extended.

For the first time in our history, the United States, by the fortunes of war, has been compelled to assume the government and control of a distant, old world territory. The United States has risen to new dignity and won new respect in the family of nations. We are recognized as one of the great powers of the world. To say that there have been no mistakes in the management of war affairs and of the Philippine question would be unreasonable. But such mistakes as have been made were neither great nor glaring. There has been no national humiliation; on the contrary, there has arisen among our own people, as among all nations, increased respect for the American flag and for American statesmanship.

Throughout the most trying period in our recent history the country has prospered as never before, every branch of home industry extending and flourishing, while our foreign commerce has acquired an importance exceeding every expectation.

William McKinley has proven himself a wise and conservative president, acting always with vigilance and prudence for the interests of the people and for the honor of the United States. There are problems only partially solved, which must be disposed of during his second administration, but American statesmanship is equal to the task. None of the questions remaining are so difficult, nor are any so difficult likely to arise, as those which have been solved, wisely and well, in the past four years.

The people have every confidence in the president and his advisers, as was shown by election results last fall, and look with pride and thankfulness upon the imposing ceremonies which are taking place in Washington today. With a senate and house both Republican and likely to continue so, the inauguration today of the tried and trusted McKinley as president and the gifted and courageous Roosevelt as vice president furnishes an assurance that the nation's interests will be carefully looked after, for another four years at least, and that the current of prosperity, now flowing so strongly, is not likely to be impeded or diverted to our disadvantage.

WORK OF CONGRESS.

The Fifty-sixth congress has passed into history. It has not done all that it was expected to do, and neither has any of its predecessors. But it has redeemed Republican pledges and given the nation a sound currency law which has the approval of the ablest business men in America and the soundest students of financial affairs. For this, if for no other reason, it deserves a nation's thanks. Another important work, performed by congress in the closing hours, was the reduction of the so-called war taxes. By this legislation, not only will $40,000,000 a year be saved to the people, but an endless amount of annoyance. Particularly will the relief from vexatious stamps now required on checks, receipts, telegrams, etc., be welcome. Nobody objected to paying his share of war taxes when the war was on and the nation needed the money. But now that the need is past, curtailment is wise. Too much money in the treasury is usually an incentive to extravagance, where economy should ever be the watchword, and all unnecessary burdens on the people's shoulders be avoided.

Those who went to Washington to see Teddy Roosevelt in a cowboy rig, riding a bucking broncho, were probably disappointed. Vice President Roosevelt has left all that behind him and for the next four years will be a dignified statesman. He has the qualities which the American people dearly love, and the idea that a man of his intellectual brilliancy and moral courage will sink into obscurity in the vice presidential office is preposterous.

Golden Rule Jones, of Toledo, has started another non-partisan movement. Its object is to re-elect Jones. If it meets with the fate that his gubernatorial boom did, it will not attract widespread attention.

ABOUT THE POTTERIES.

The decorating department of the Burford pottery is rushed with orders just at present, and an additional printer has been put on.

A number of employees of the National plant, who have been idle during the past week, have resumed work.

The workmen employed by the Erie Roofing company, which is placing the rock asbestos roof on the Laughlin No. 2 pottery, have made rapid progress and expect to complete their work in two weeks. The company has also secured the contract for placing a slate roof on the new library.

Local union No. 16, saggermakers, will hold a smoker in their rooms this evening, to which all the other organizations have been invited. The saggermakers have been organized for several years, and this is their first effort in that line. The local has almost doubled its membership within the past few months and is now one of the leading organizations affiliated with the Brotherhood.

NEW STATION.

Report That It Will Be Erected Now Confirmed.

The report, published exclusively in the News Review a few days ago, that a new station building would be erected by the Pennsylvania company at First street, Southside, is now confirmed by good authority. The further fact that the ground here used by the company was donated under the express condition that a station should be erected within a specified time, which will soon expire, would seem to leave no doubt that this much needed building will be erected at an early date.

Twenty-one of the 23 passengers arriving this morning left the train at this place. This about represents the comparative passenger traffic at the two stations, while nearly all the freight arriving at Chester would be left at the new station if any protection from the weather were afforded.

The merchants very much dislike to haul their goods a distance of two miles through the mud while stations are provided at other places on the road where not one-fourth as much business is done. The proposed improvement cannot come too soon, is the way they look at it.

FIRST WARD COUNCIL.

Henry E. Bullock is a Deserving Candidate.

[Communicated.]

In our announcement column today will be seen the name of Henry E. Bullock, who is a candidate for council in the First ward. Mr. Bullock, while probably young in years, has had every opportunity for the past seven years to come in close touch with all the workings of the different councils. He has been in active newspaper work during that time in this city, and has handled the articles whereby the citizens ascertained just what the city solons were doing.

To handle these matters the newspaper man has to be able to be more in touch with the workings of all the committees than even the regular council members. Further than this, Mr. Bullock has been a resident of the First ward for the past 22 years, and is entirely familiar with the needs so far as improvement is concerned in that vicinity. The voters of the First ward could not do better than to support him at the nomination and election.

"Oh, he will listen to my demonstration."

Great Drawing to a Bobtail Pair.

"The most remarkable draw I ever saw made at poker was in a Chicago club one night," said a Chicago man. "There were five of us in a little social game, with a limit of $25 and all jack pots. A friend of mine whom I will call Jones was dealing. I was first under the guns and passed, as did also the two men sitting next. The fifth man—we will say his name was Brown—opened the pot for $5. Jones didn't have the shadow of a thing in his hands, but he raised Brown $10, intending to stand pat and bluff it out. Brown had three aces, and he came back at Jones with $10 better.

"Now, instead of laying down, as a wise man should in a case like that, Jones determined to see it through. He knew, of course, that it would be useless to try to bluff, so he drew three cards to a king and queen of spades. Brown had drawn two cards to his aces and had got a small pair. As a bait he led off the betting with $5. Jones hadn't looked at his hand until Brown bet, and when he picked up his cards he almost fell dead. He had drawn an ace, jack and ten of spades, making a royal flush. They raised each other back and forth until one or the other had all his money in, and when the hands were shown the game broke up right there."—Washington Post.

The Time to Break the Rule.

There is an anecdote in some volume of French theatrical memoirs narrating an experience of Mlle. Clairon, the great tragic actress, with a pupil of hers, a girl of strong natural gifts for the histrionic art, but far too frequent and too exuberant in her gesticulation. So when the pupil was once to appear before the public in a recitation Mlle. Clairon bound the girl's arms to her side by a stiff thread and sent her thus upon the stage.

With the first strong feeling she had to express the pupil tried to raise her arms, only to be restrained by the thread. A dozen times in the course of her recitation she was prevented from making the gestures she desired until at the very end she could stand it no longer, and in the climax of her emotion she broke her bonds and swung her hands to her head.

When she came off the stage, she went humbly to where Mlle. Clairon was standing in the wings and apologized for having snapped the thread. "But you did quite right!" said the teacher. "That was the time to make the gesture, not before!"—Brander Matthews in Harper's Magazine.

A Chinese Mother-in-law Story.

"The Experiences of a British Pharmacist in China" was the title of an address by Mr. Frank Browne, who was introduced as the government analyst at Hongkong.

As illustrating the Chinese regard for filial piety the lecturer told an interesting mother-in-law story. A man and his wife maltreated the husband's mother. As a punishment the scene of the act was openly cursed, the active agents were put to death, and the mother of the wife was bamboozed, branded and exiled for her daughter's crime. The house, in which the offenders lived was dug up from the foundations. Moreover, the scholars of the district were precluded from attending public examinations, and even the magistrates were deprived of their office. These drastic measures were designed to render the empire filial.—London News.

A Change.

"Do you think people in the next world will follow the same occupations they do here?" asked the gossiping lady.

"No," said the churchman; "everybody will attend to his own business there."—Syracuse Standard.

A Quaint Introduction.

On one occasion the dean of Wells in introducing E. A. Freeman, whom he could abide neither as man nor historian, said: "I rise with great pleasure to propose the health of our eminent neighbor, Mr. Freeman, the historian, a man who, in his own personal characteristics, has so often depicted for us the savage character of our first forefathers."

No Snakes in Hawaii.

The centiped is the only poisonous insect on the Hawaiian Islands, and its sting here is no more dangerous than the sting of a wasp or hornet in the United States. On the mainland the tarantula's sting is usually fatal and always brings serious consequences. Hawaii is fortunate, too, in having no snakes or poisonous reptiles.—Honolulu Republican.

Great Drawing to a Bobtail Pair.

"The most remarkable draw I ever saw made at poker was in a Chicago club one night," said a Chicago man. "There were five of us in a little social game, with a limit of $25 and all jack pots. A friend of mine whom I will call Jones was dealing. I was first under the guns and passed, as did also the two men sitting next. The fifth man—we will say his name was Brown—opened the pot for $5. Jones didn't have the shadow of a thing in his hands, but he raised Brown $10, intending to stand pat and bluff it out. Brown had three aces, and he came back at Jones with $10 better.

"Now, instead of laying down, as a wise man should in a case like that, Jones determined to see it through. He knew, of course, that it would be useless to try to bluff, so he drew three cards to a king and queen of spades. Brown had drawn two cards to his aces and had got a small pair. As a bait he led off the betting with $5. Jones hadn't looked at his hand until Brown bet, and when he picked up his cards he almost fell dead. He had drawn an ace, jack and ten of spades, making a royal flush. They raised each other back and forth until one or the other had all his money in, and when the hands were shown the game broke up right there."—Washington Post.

The Time to Break the Rule.

There is an anecdote in some volume of French theatrical memoirs narrating an experience of Mlle. Clairon, the great tragic actress, with a pupil of hers, a girl of strong natural gifts for the histrionic art, but far too frequent and too exuberant in her gesticulation. So when the pupil was once to appear before the public in a recitation Mlle. Clairon bound the girl's arms to her side by a stiff thread and sent her thus upon the stage.

With the first strong feeling she had to express the pupil tried to raise her arms, only to be restrained by the thread. A dozen times in the course of her recitation she was prevented from making the gestures she desired until at the very end she could stand it no longer, and in the climax of her emotion she broke her bonds and swung her hands to her head.

When she came off the stage, she went humbly to where Mlle. Clairon was standing in the wings and apologized for having snapped the thread.

"But you did quite right!" said the teacher. "That was the time to make the gesture, not before!"—Brander Matthews in Harper's Magazine.

A Chinese Mother-in-law Story.

"The Experiences of a British Pharmacist in China" was the title of an address by Mr. Frank Browne, who was introduced as the government analyst at Hongkong.

As illustrating the Chinese regard for filial piety the lecturer told an interesting mother-in-law story. A man and his wife maltreated the husband's mother. As a punishment the scene of the act was openly cursed, the active agents were put to death, and the mother of the wife was bamboozed, branded and exiled for her daughter's crime. The house in which the offenders lived was dug up from the foundations. Moreover, the scholars of the district were precluded from attending public examinations, and even the magistrates were deprived of their office. These drastic measures were designed to render the empire filial.—London News.

A Quaint Introduction.

On one occasion the dean of Wells in introducing E. A. Freeman, whom he could abide neither as man nor historian, said: "I rise with great pleasure to propose the health of our eminent neighbor, Mr. Freeman, the historian, a man who, in his own personal characteristics, has so often depicted for us the savage character of our first forefathers."

No Snakes in Hawaii.

The centipede is the only poisonous insect on the Hawaiian Islands, and its sting here is no more dangerous than the sting of a wasp or hornet in the United States. On the mainland the tarantula's sting is usually fatal and always brings serious consequences. Hawaii is fortunate, too, in having no snakes or poisonous reptiles.—Honolulu Republican.

M'KINLEY AND ROOSEVELT SWORN IN AT NOON TODAY

A Most Impressive Ceremony Witnessed by Great Crowds at the National Capital.

THE PRESIDENT'S INAUGURAL ADDRESS IN FULL

For the First Time in 25 Years the President Rode Without a Successor to His Office in His Carriage—A Great Procession Led by the Rough Rider Band With Veterans of the Civil War Acting as the President's Escort—Eventful History Reviewed by the President.

Washington, March 4.—William McKinley, of Ohio, today was inducted into the presidential office, and also Theodore Roosevelt, of New York, became vice president of the United States.

The ceremony that marked this second assumption by President McKinley of the cares of state was most impressive and full of suggestion of the development of the republic during the past four years.

The parade was a magnificent affair. The civil contingent was quite up to the average in point of numbers; the men in soldierly uniforms outnumbered the civilians in line by more than three to one. In the ranks were men who participated in fighting late years for their country. In the place of honor, as the president's escort, marched soldiers of the Civil War. At their head marched the Rough Rider band.

No Successor With President.

For the first time in a quarter of a century the president rode from the white house to the capitol without a successor beside him in his carriage. Grant was the last of the presidents of the United States up to this time to occupy a similar position. President McKinley had for his companion in his carriage members of the committee specially chosen by congress to take charge of the inauguration headed by Senator Mark Hanna, himself a national figure.

The nations of the world, great and small, paid their tribute to the president in their attendance at the ceremonies at the capitol and in reviewing the great parade. In addition to the splendid diplomatic representation, there was present for the first time the head of government of our next door neighbor, the dominion of Canada, in the person of Lord Minto, the imperial governor general.

The American navy, which has so distinguished itself in the past four years, was represented in the ceremonies more numerously than ever before. Half a dozen warships, more than have assembled in the Potomac since the days of the Civil War, contributed, through their sailors and marines, one of the most unique and enjoyable features of the ceremony, marching over a thousand strong along the streets. Down on the water front lay moored the famous old flagship Hartford, inspiring stirring recollections of the fierce naval combats of the Civil War, while at the navy yard floated the grim double-turreted monitor Puritan, symbolic of later-day warfare. Further down the Potomac lay other vessels unable to get up the river to Washington, but whose crews swelled the list of paraders.

Number of Governors Participated.

There were 14 governors, representing north, south and west, most of them accompanied by numerous staffs. There were Governor Odell, of New York; Governor Yates, of Illinois; Governor Bliss, of Michigan; Governor Van Sant, of Minnesota; Governor Richards, of Wyoming; Governor Stone, of Pennsylvania; Governor Dietrich, of Nebraska; Governor Shaw, of Iowa; Governor Crane, of Massachusetts; Governor McMillin, of Tennessee; Governor Dockery, of Missouri; Governor Barnes, of Oklahoma; Governor Smith, of Maryland; Governor Longino, of Mississippi.

Though worn and weary, the legislative branch of the national government faithfully executed its part in the day's ceremonies. The protracted sessions of the last few days, involving work day and night, imposed severe physical strain upon the senators and representatives, yet when the time came to close up the task of legislation and turn to the inauguration of the president, all was in readiness in the capitol.

About 11 a. m. there was a gathering of high government officials, diplomats and specially invited guests in the United States senate chamber.

About 11:50 a. m. the inauguration of Theodore Roosevelt, of New York, as vice president of the United States occurred. The ceremonies in the senate were attended by the president and a distinguished company.

About 12 noon President McKinley took the oath of office in the presence of the assembled multitude. He delivered his inaugural address, which was as follows:

Speech of the President.

My Fellow Citizens:

When we assembled here on the 4th of March, 1897, there was great anxiety with regard to our currency and credit. None exists now. The treasury receipts were inadequate to meet current obligations of the government. Now they are sufficient for all public needs, and we have a surplus instead of a deficit. Then I felt constrained to convene the congress in extraordinary session to devise revenues to pay the ordinary expenses of the government. Now I have the satisfaction to announce that the congress just closed has reduced taxation in the sum of $41,000,000. Then there was deep solicitude because of the long depression in our manufacturing, mining, agricultural and mercantile industries and the consequent distress of the laboring population. Now every avenue of production is crowded with activity, labor is well employed and American products find good markets at home and abroad.

Our diversified productions, however, are increasing in such precedent volume as to admonish us of the necessity of still further enlarging our foreign markets by broader commercial relations. For this purpose reciprocal trade arrangements with other nations should in liberal spirit be fully cultivated and promoted.

National Verdict Mainly Executed.

The national verdict of 1896 has for the most part been executed. What remains unfulfilled is a continuing obligation resting with undiminished force upon the executive and the congress. But, fortunate as our condition is, its permanence can only be assured by sound business methods and strict economy in national administration and legislation. We should not permit our great prosperity to lead us to reckless ventures in business or prodigality in public expenditures. While the congress determines the objects and the sum of appropriations, the officials of the executive departments are responsible for honest and faithful disbursement, and it should be their constant care to avoid waste and extravagance.

Honesty, capacity and industry are nowhere more indispensable than in public employment. These should be fundamental requisites to original appointment and the surest guarantees against removal.

Four years ago we stood on the brink of war without the people knowing it and without any preparation or effort at preparation for the impending peril. I did all that in honor could be done to avert the war, but without avail. It became inevitable; and the congress at its first regular session, without party division provided money in anticipation of the crisis and in preparation to meet

it. It came. The result was signally favorable to American arms and in the highest degree honorable to the government. It imposed upon us obligations from which we cannot escape and from which it would be dishonorable to seek to escape. We are now at peace with the world, and it is my fervent prayer that if differences arise between us and other powers they may be settled by peaceful arbitration and that hereafter we may be spared the horrors of war.

Appreciates Great Responsibilities.

Entrusted by the people for a second time with the office of president, I enter upon its administration appreciating the great responsibilities which attach to this renewed honor and commission, promising unserved devotion on my part to their faithful discharge and reverently invoking for my guidance the direction and favor of Almighty God. I should shrink from the duties this day assumed if I did not feel that in the performance I should have the cooperation of the wise and patriotic men of all parties. It encourages me for the great task which I now undertake to believe that those who voluntarily committed to me the trust imposed upon the chief executive of the republic will give to me generous support in my duties to "preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States," and to care that the laws be faithfully executed. The national purpose is indicated through a national election. It is the constitutional method of ascertaining the public will. When once it is registered it is a law to us all, and faithful observance should follow its decrees.

Sectionalism Mostly Disappeared.

Strong hearts and helpful hands are needed, and, fortunately, we have them in every part of our beloved country. We are reunited. Sectionalism has disappeared. Division on public questions can no longer be traced by the war maps of 1861. Existing problems demand the thought and quicken the conscience of the country and the responsibility for their presence, as well as for their righteous settlement, rests upon us all—no more upon me than upon you. There are some national questions in the solution of which patriotism should exclude partisanship. Magnifying their difficulties will not take them off our hands nor facilitate their adjustment. Distrust of the capacity, integrity and high purposes of the American people will not be an inspiring theme for future political contests. Dark pictures and gloomy forebodings are worse than useless. These only becloud, they do not help to point the way of safety and honor. "Hope maketh not ashamed." The prophets of evil were not the builders of the republic, nor in its crisis since have they saved or served it. The faith of the fathers was a mighty force in its creation, and the faith of their descendants has wrought its progress and furnished its defenders. They are obstructionists who despair and who would destroy confidence in the ability of our people to solve wisely and for civilization the mighty problems resting upon them. The American people, entrenched in freedom at home, take their love for it with them wherever they go, and they reject as mistaken and unworthy the doctrine that we lose our own liberties by securing the enduring foundations of liberty to others. Our institutions will not deteriorate by extension and our sense of justice will not abate under tropic suns in distant seas. As heretofore, so hereafter, will the nation demonstrate its fitness to administer any new estate which events devolve upon it, and in the fear of God will "take occasion by the hand and make the bounds of freedom wider yet." If there are those among us who would make our way more difficult, we must not be disheartened, but the more earnestly dedicate ourselves to the task upon which we have rightly entered. The path of progress is seldom smooth. New things are often found hard to do. Our fathers found them so. We find them so. They are inconvenient. They cost us something. But are we not made better for the effort and sacrifice, and are not those we serve lifted up and blessed?

Opposition Ever Present.

"We will be consoled, too, with the fact that opposition has confronted every onward movement of the republic from its opening hour until now, but without success. The republic has marched on and on, and its every step has exalted freedom and humanity. We are undergoing the same ordeal as did our predecessors nearly a century ago. We are following the course they blazed. They triumphed. Will their successors falter and plead organic impotency in the nation? Surely after 125 years of achievement for mankind we will not surrender our equality with other powers on matters fundamental and essential to nationality. With no such purpose was the nation created. In no such spirit has it developed its full and independent sovereignty. We adhere to the principle of equality among ourselves, and by no act of ours will we assign to ourselves a subordinate rank in the family of nations.

My fellow citizens, the public events of the past four years have gone into history. They are too near to justify recital. Some of them were unforeseen; many of them momentous and far-reaching in their consequences to ourselves and our relations with the rest of the world. The part which the United States bore so honorably in the thrilling scenes in China, while new to American life, has been in harmony with its true spirit and best traditions, and in dealing with the results its policy will be that of moderation and fairness.

Face Important Question.

We face at this moment a most important question—that of the future relations of the United States and Cuba. With our near neighbors we must remain close friends. The declaration of the purposes of this government in the resolution of April 20, 1898, must be made good. Ever since the evacuation of the island by the army of Spain the executive with all practicable speed has been assisting its people in the successive steps necessary to the establishment of a free and independent government prepared to assume and perform the obligations of international law which now rest upon the United States under the treaty of Paris. The convention elected by the people to frame a constitution is approaching the completion of its labors. The transfer of American control to the new government is of such great importance, involving an obligation resulting from our intervention and the treaty of peace, that I am glad to be advised by the recent act of congress of the policy which the legislative branch of the government deems essential to the best interests of Cuba and the United States. The principles which led to our intervention require that the fundamental law upon which the new government rests should be adapted to secure a government capable of performing the duties and discharging the functions of a separate nation, of observing its international obligations of protecting life and property, insuring order, safety and liberty, and conforming to the established and historical policy of the United States in its relation to Cuba.

Must Have Permanent Guarantees.

The peace which we are pledged to leave to the Cuban people must carry with it the guarantees of permanence. We became sponsors for the pacification of the island and we remain accountable to the Cubans, no less than to our own country and people for the reconstruction of Cuba as a free commonwealth on abiding foundations of right, justice, liberty and assured order. Our enfranchisement of the people will not be completed until free Cuba shall "be a reality not a name; a perfect entity, not a hasty experiment bearing within itself the elements of failure."

While the treaty of peace with Spain was ratified on the 6th of February, 1899, and ratifications were exchanged nearly two years ago, the congress has indicated no form of government for the Philippine islands. It has, however, provided an army to enable the executive to suppress insurrection, restore peace, give security to the inhabitants and establish the authority of the United States throughout the archipelago. It has authorized the organization of native troops as auxiliary to the regular force. It has been advised from time to time of the acts of the military and naval officers in the islands of my action in appointing civil commissions of the instructions with which they were charged of their duties and powers, of their recommendations and of their several acts under executive commission, together with the very complete general information they have submitted. These reports

There were 14 governors, representing north, south and west, most of them accompanied by numerous staffs. There were Governor Odell, of New York; Governor Yates, of Illinois; Governor Bliss, of Michigan; Governor Van Sandt, of Minnesota; Governor Richards, of Wyoming; Governor Stone, of Pennsylvania; Governor Dietrich, of Nebraska; Governor Shaw, of Iowa; Governor Crane, of Massachusetts; Governor McMillin, of Tennessee; Governor Dockery, of Missouri; Governor Barnes, of Oklahoma; Governor Smith, of Maryland; Governor Longino, of Mississippi.

Though worn and weary, the legislative branch of the national government faithfully executed its part in the day's ceremonies. The protracted sessions of the last few days, involving work day and night, imposed severe physical strain upon the senators and representatives, yet when the time came to close up the task of legislation and turn to the inauguration of the president, all was in readiness in the capitol.

About 11 a. m. there was a gathering of high government officials, diplomats and specially invited guests in the United States senate chamber.

About 11:50 a. m. the inauguration of Theodore Roosevelt, of New York, as vice president of the United States occurred. The ceremonies in the senate were attended by the president and a distinguished company.

About 12 noon President McKinley took the oath of office in the presence of the assembled multitude. He delivered his inaugural address, which was as follows:

Speech of the President.

My Fellow Citizens:

When we assembled here on the 4th of March, 1897, there was great anxiety with regard to our currency and credit. None exists now. The treasury receipts were inadequate to meet current obligations of the government. Now they are sufficient for all public needs, and we have a surplus instead of a deficit. Then I felt constrained to convene the congress in extraordinary session to devise revenues to pay the ordinary expenses of the government. Now I have the satisfaction to announce that the congress just closed has reduced taxation in the sum of $41,000,000. Then there was deep solicitude because of the long depression in our manufacturing, mining, agricultural and mercantile industries and the consequent distress of the laboring population. Now every avenue of production is crowded with activity, labor is well employed and American products find good markets at home and abroad.

Our diversified productions, however, are increasing in such unprecedented volume as to admonish us of the necessity of still further enlarging our foreign markets by broader commercial relations. For this purpose reciprocal trade arrangements with other nations should in liberal spirit be fully cultivated and promoted.

National Verdict Mainly Executed.

The national verdict of 1896 has for the most part been executed. What ever remains unfulfilled is a continuing obligation resting with undiminished force upon the executive and the congress. But, fortunate as our condition is, its permanence can only be assured by sound business methods and strict economy in national administration and legislation. We should not permit our great prosperity to lead us to reckless ventures in business or prodigality in public expenditures. While the congress determines the objects and the sum of appropriations, the officials of the executive departments are responsible for honest and faithful disbursement, and it should be their constant care to avoid waste and extravagance.

Honesty, capacity and industry are nowhere more indispensable than in public employment. These should be fundamental requisites to original appointment and the surest guarantees against removal.

Four years ago we stood on the brink of war without the people knowing it and without any preparation or effort at preparation for the impending peril. I did all that in honor could be done to avert the war, but without avail. It became inevitable; and the congress at its first regular session, without party division provided money in anticipation of the crisis and in preparation to meet

it. It came. The result was signally favorable to American arms and in the highest degree honorable to the government. It imposed upon us obligations from which we cannot escape and from which it would be dishonorable to seek to escape. We are now at peace with the world, and it is my fervent prayer that if differences arise between us and other powers they may be settled by peaceful arbitration and that hereafter we may be spared the horrors of war.

Appreciates Great Responsibilities.

Entrusted by the people for a second time with the office of president, I enter upon its administration appreciating the great responsibilities which attach to this renewed honor and commission, promising unreserved devotion on my part to their faithful discharge and reverently invoking for my guidance the direction and favor of Almighty God. I should shrink from the duties this day assumed if I did not feel that in the performance I should have the cooperation of the wise and patriotic men of all parties. It encourages me for the great task which I now undertake to believe that those who voluntarily committed to me the trust imposed upon the chief executive of the republic will give to me generous support in my duties to "preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States," and to care that the laws be faithfully executed. The national purpose is indicated through a national election. It is the constitutional method of ascertaining the public will. When once it is registered it is a law to us all, and faithful observance should follow its decrees.

Sectionalism Mostly Disappeared.

Strong hearts and helpful hands are needed, and, fortunately, we have them in every part of our beloved country. We are reunited. Sectionalism has disappeared. Division on public questions can no longer be traced by the war maps of 1861. Existing problems demand the thought and quicken the conscience of the country and the responsibility for their presence, as well as for their righteous settlement, rests upon us all—no more upon me than upon you. There are some national questions in the solution of which patriotism should exclude partisanship. Magnifying their difficulties will not take them off our hands nor facilitate their adjustment. Distrust of the capacity, integrity and high purposes of the American people will not be an inspiring theme for future political contests. Dark pictures and gloomy forebodings are worse than useless. These only becloud, they do not help to point the way of safety and honor. "Hope maketh not ashamed." The prophets of evil were not the builders of the republic, nor in its crisis since have they saved or served it. The faith of the fathers was a mighty force in its creation, and the faith of their descendants has wrought its progress and furnished its defenders. They are obstructionists who despair and who would destroy confidence in the ability of our people to solve wisely and for civilization the mighty problems resting upon them. The American people, entrenched in freedom at home, take their love for it with them wherever they go, and they reject as mistaken and unworthy the doctrine that we lose our own liberties by securing the enduring foundations of liberty to others. Our institutions will not deteriorate by extension and our sense of justice will not abate under tropic suns in distant seas. As heretofore, so hereafter, will the nation demonstrate its fitness to administer any new estate which events devolve upon it, and in the fear of God will "take occasion by the hand and make the bounds of freedom wider yet." If there are those among us who would make our way more difficult, we must not be disheartened, but the more earnestly dedicate ourselves to the task upon which we have rightly entered. The path of progress is seldom smooth. New things are often found hard to do. Our fathers found them so. We find them so. They are inconvenient. They cost us something. But are we not made better for the effort and sacrifice, and are not those we serve lifted up and blessed?

Opposition Ever Present.

"We will be consoled, too, with the fact that opposition has confronted every onward movement of the republic from its opening hour until now, but without success. The republic has marched on and on, and its every step has exalted freedom and humanity. We are undergoing the same ordeal as did our predecessors nearly a century ago. We are following the course they blazed. They triumphed. Will their successors falter and plead organic impotency in the nation? Surely after 125 years of achievement for mankind we will not surrender our equality with other powers on matters fundamental and essential to nationality. With no such purpose was the nation created. In no such spirit has it developed its full and independent sovereignty. We adhere to the principle of equality among ourselves, and by no act of ours will we assign to ourselves a subordinate rank in the family of nations.

My fellow citizens, the public events of the past four years have gone into history. They are too near to justify recital. Some of them were unforeseen; many of them momentous and far-reaching in their consequences to ourselves and our relations with the rest of the world. The part which the United States bore so honorably in the thrilling scenes in China, while new to American life, has been in harmony with its true spirit and best traditions, and in dealing with the results its policy will be that of moderation and fairness.

Face Important Question.

We face at this moment a most important question—that of the future relations of the United States and Cuba. With our near neighbors we must remain close friends. The declaration of the purposes of this government in the resolution of April 20, 1898, must be made good. Ever since the evacuation of the island by the army of Spain the executive with all practicable speed has been assisting its people in the successive steps necessary to the establishment of a free and independent government prepared to assume and perform the obligations of international law which now rest upon the United States under the treaty of Paris. The convention elected by the people to frame a constitution is approaching the completion of its labors. The transfer of American control to the new government is of such great importance, involving an obligation resulting from our intervention and the treaty of peace, that I am glad to be advised by the recent act of congress of the policy which the legislative branch of the government deems essential to the best interests of Cuba and the United States. The principles which led to our intervention require that the fundamental law upon which the new government rests should be adapted to secure a government capable of performing the duties and discharging the functions of a separate nation, of observing its international obligations of protecting life and property, insuring order, safety and liberty, and conforming to the established and historical policy of the United States in its relation to Cuba.

Must Have Permanent Guarantees.

The peace which we are pledged to leave to the Cuban people must carry with it the guarantees of permanence. We became sponsors for the pacification of the island and we remain accountable to the Cubans, no less than to our own country and people for the reconstruction of Cuba as a free commonwealth on abiding foundations of right, justice, liberty and assured order. Our enfranchisement of the people will not be completed until free Cuba shall "be a reality not a name; a perfect entity, not a hasty experiment bearing within it self the elements of failure."

While the treaty of peace with Spain was ratified on the 6th of February, 1899, and ratifications were exchanged nearly two years ago, the congress has indicated no form of government for the Philippine islands. It has, however, provided an army to enable the executive to suppress insurrection, restore peace, give security to the inhabitants and establish the authority of the United States throughout the archipelago. It has authorized the organization of native troops as auxiliary to the regular force. It has been advised from time to time of the acts of the military and naval officers in the islands of my action in appointing civil commissions of the instructions with which they were charged of their duties and powers, of their recommendations and of their several acts under executive commission, together with the very complete general information they have submitted. These reports

IN THE WORKHOUSE.

Ocie Geary, Well Known Here, Now in Retirement.

Ocie Geary is now an inmate of the Canton workhouse and she will remain there for several weeks to come. Ocie was arrested several times in this city for drunkenness and Mayor Davidson fined her each time, but she always managed to pay. She went to Steubenville, where she tried the same game, but it didn't work. The third time she appeared before Mayor Means he fined her $50 and costs and her trip to the works resulted.

Improving at Mt. Clemens.

A letter has been received by friends in this city from Oscar Bowles, who went to Mt. Clemens several days ago. Mr. Bowles had been suffering with rheumatism for a long time, and went to the resort in the hope of benefiting his health. The gentleman reports his condition as much improved.

fully set forth the conditions, past and present, in the islands, and the instructions clearly show the principles which will guide the executive until the congress shall, as it is required to do by the treaty, determine "the civil rights and political status of the native inhabitants." The congress having added the sanction of its authority to the powers already possessed and exercised by the executive under the constitution, thereby leaving with the executive the responsibility for the government of the Philippines, I shall continue the efforts already begun until order shall be restored throughout the islands and as fast as conditions permit will establish local governments, in the formation of which the full co-operation of the people has been already invited, and when established will encourage the people to administer them. The settled purpose, long ago proclaimed, to afford the inhabitants of the islands self-government as fast as they were ready for it will be pursued with earnestness and fidelity. Already something has been accomplished in this direction. The government's representatives, civil and military, are doing faithful and noble work in their mission of emancipation, and merit the approval and support of their countrymen. The most liberal terms of amnesty have already been communicated to the insurgents and the doorway is open for those who have raised their arms against the government for honorable submission to its authority. Our countrymen should not be deceived. We are not waging war against the inhabitants of the Philippine islands, making war against the United States.

A portion of them are making war against the United States. By far the greater part of the inhabitants recognize American sovereignty and welcome it as a guaranty of order and of security for life, property, liberty, freedom of conscience, and the pursuit of happiness. To them full protection will be given. They shall not be abandoned. We will not leave the destiny of the loyal millions in the islands to the disloyal thousands who are in rebellion against the United States. Order under civil institutions will come as soon as those who now break the peace shall keep it. Force will not be needed or used when those who make war against us shall make it no more. May it end without further bloodshed and there be ushered in the reign of peace to be made permanent by a government of liberty under law.

fully set forth the conditions, past and present, in the islands, and the instructions clearly show the principles which will guide the executive until the congress shall, as it is required to do by the treaty, determine the civil rights and political status of the native inhabitants." The congress having added the sanction of its authority to the powers already possessed and exercised by the executive under the constitution, thereby leaving with the executive the responsibility for the government of the Philippines, I shall continue the efforts already begun until order shall be restored throughout the islands and as fast as conditions permit will establish local governments, in the formation of which the full co-operation of the people has been already invited, and when established will encourage the people to administer them. The settled purpose, long ago proclaimed, to afford the inhabitants of the islands self-government as fast as they were ready for it will be pursued with earnestness and fidelity. Already something has been accomplished in this direction. The government's representatives, civil and military, are doing faithful and noble work in their mission of emancipation, and merit the approval and support of their countrymen. The most liberal terms of amnesty have already been communicated to the insurgents and the doorway is open for those who have raised their arms against the government for honorable submission to its authority. Our countrymen should not be deceived. We are not waging war against the inhabitants of the Philippine islands, Making War Against the United States.

A portion of them are making war against the United States. By far the greater part of the inhabitants recognize American sovereignty and welcome it as a guaranty of order and of security for life, property, liberty, freedom of conscience, and the pursuit of happiness. To them full protection will be given. They shall not be abandoned. We will not leave the destiny of the loyal millions in the islands to the disloyal thousands who are in rebellion against the United States. Order under civil institutions will come as soon as those who now break the peace shall keep it. Force will not be needed or used when those who make war against us shall make it no more. May it end without further bloodshed and there be ushered in the reign of peace to be made permanent by a government of liberty under law.

CONGRESS ADJOURNS.

Lawmakers Quit Work About Noon Today—Had Been in Session Sunday.

Washington, March 4.—Congress adjourned about noon today. The first Sunday session of the Fifty-sixth congress was held by the senate Sunday. It will not appear in The Congressional Record as a session of Sunday, as the senate was working under the legislative day of Saturday, and will continue so to work until the session should be declared adjourned finally at noon today. Sunday's session began about 3 o'clock, the senate having been in recess since about 10:30 Saturday night. The galleries were packed with people here to attend the inauguration ceremonies, and, by reason of important business, there was a large attendance of senators.

After a spirited fight, both in conference and on the floor of the senate, the final conference report on the naval appropriation bill was agreed to, the senate receding from the one contested amendment authorizing the construction of three additional Holland submarine torpedo boats.

A conference report on the general deficiency bill was agreed to without comment. During the afternoon and evening the senate passed a large number of bills, among them being that to promote the safety of railroad bridges.

Mr. McGraw called attention of the senate to the fact that a bill had been lost. It was the act to promote the safety of railroad employees, the bill which passed Sunday after noon. It was said that the house had concurred in the senate amendments and the bill had been enrolled and signed by the speaker and lost between the houses. Mr. Pettigrew denounced it as an outrage, and charged that it had been "stolen" or "lost on purpose."

Mr. Lodge said he heard the clerk of the house announce the house action on the bill, but had been unable to find the bill anywhere.

On motion of Mr. Pettigrew the senate adopted a resolution ordering a re-enrollment of the bill and requesting the speaker to sign it.

The house, which was still in the legislative day of Friday, was in session from about 2 to 6 Sunday afternoon and last evening from about 8 o'clock it worked on into the night to dispose of the conference reports which crowded in upon it. The confusion and din of the floor of the speaker's gavel going incessantly to preserve the semblance of order must have made the proceedings unintelligible to them. There was a big fight during the afternoon over the senate amendment to the sundry civil bill,

Mr. Cannon chairman of the appropriations committee, led the fight against them and defeated a motion to concur. CALCUTTA CAR LINE.

An Improved Brake to Be Used When Service is Resumed Again.

It will be several weeks before the Calcutta road street car line is again placed in operation. Manager Healy stated this morning that he had closed a contract for a new brake to be used on the car on that line, and while it was expensive, it did not cost as much as wreck cars and other items of expense connected with wrecks.

The brake has been purchased subject to approval and can be returned if it does not prove satisfactory. It is an absolutely new thing for this section, but has been used on the Philadelphia suburban lines for two years.

A Great Military Play.

William Gillette's greatest play, "Secret Service," which is to be presented at the Grand Opera House on Thursday, March 14, deals with the civil war. So far as clashing sabres and rattling musketry are concerned, there is no real war in the play. The battlefield is never reached, but the story is based on the military operations around Richmond in the exciting days of the early '60's. The heroine is the beautiful daughter of a Confederate general, who is loved by two men. Although the hero and heroine have differences in sectional sympathy, love finally conquers all.

fully set forth the conditions, past and present, in the islands, and the instructions clearly show the principles which will guide the executive until the congress shall, as it is required to do by the treaty, determine "the civil rights and political status of the native inhabitants." The congress having added the sanction of its authority to the powers already possessed and exercised by the executive under the constitution, thereby leaving with the executive the responsibility for the government of the Philippines, I shall continue the efforts already begun until order shall be restored throughout the islands and as fast as conditions permit will establish local governments, in the formation of which the full co-operation of the people has been already invited, and when established will encourage the people to administer them. The settled purpose, long ago proclaimed, to afford the inhabitants of the islands self-government as fast as they were ready for it will be pursued with earnestness and fidelity. Already something has been accomplished in this direction. The government's representatives, civil and military, are doing faithful and noble work in their mission of emancipation, and merit the approval and support of their countrymen. The most liberal terms of amnesty have already been communicated to the insurgents and the doorway is open for those who have raised their arms against the government for honorable submission to its authority. Our countrymen should not be deceived. We are not waging war against the inhabitants of the Philippine islands, Making War Against the United States.

A portion of them are making war against the United States. By far the greater part of the inhabitants recognize American sovereignty and welcome it as a guaranty of order and of security for life, property, liberty, freedom of conscience, and the pursuit of happiness. To them full protection will be given. They shall not be abandoned. We will not leave the destiny of the loyal millions in the islands to the disloyal thousands who are in rebellion against the United States. Order under civil institutions will come as soon as those who now break the peace shall keep it. Force will not be needed or used when those who make war against us shall make it no more. May it end without further bloodshed and there be ushered in the reign of peace to be made permanent by a government of liberty under law.

CONGRESS ADJOURNS.

Lawmakers Quit Work About Noon Today—Had Been in Session Sunday.

Washington, March 4.—Congress adjourned about noon today.

The first Sunday session of the Fifty-sixth congress was held by the senate Sunday. It will not appear in The Congressional Record as a session of Sunday, as the senate was working under the legislative day of Saturday, and will continue so to work until the session should be declared adjourned finally at noon today. Sunday's session began about 8 o'clock, the senate having been in recess since about 10:30 Saturday night. The galleries were packed with people here to attend the inauguration ceremonies, and, by reason of important business, there was a large attendance of senators.

After a spirited fight, both in conference and on the floor of the senate, the final conference report on the naval appropriation bill was agreed to, the senate receding from the one contested amendment authorizing the construction of three additional Holland submarine torpedo boats.

A conference report on the general deficiency bill was agreed to without comment. During the afternoon and evening the senate passed a large number of bills, among them being that to promote the safety of railroads.

Mr. McGraw called attention to the fact that a bill had been lost. It was the act to promote the safety of railroad employes, the bill which passed Sunday after noon. It was said that the house had concurred in the senate amendments and the bill had been enrolled and signed by the speaker and lost between the houses. Mr. Pettigrew denounced it as an outrage, and charged that it had been "stolen" or "lost on purpose."

Mr. Lodge said he heard the clerk of the house announce the house action on the bill, but had been unable to find the bill anywhere.

On motion of Mr. Pettigrew the senate adopted a resolution ordering a re-enrollment of the bill and requesting the speaker to sign it.

The house, which was still in the legislative day of Friday, was in session from about 2 to 6 Sunday afternoon and last evening from about 8 o'clock it worked on into the night to dispose of the conference reports which crowded in upon it. The confusion and din of the floor of the speaker's gavel going incessantly to preserve the semblance of order must have made the proceedings unintelligible to them. There was a big fight during the afternoon over the senate amendment to the sundry civil bill,

NEWS OF CHURCHES

Pastor Crowe Returns Thanks to His Congregation For Granting Him a Vacation.

MANY JOIN THE M. E. CHURCH

Revival Services so Successful That They Will Be Continued—Special Meetings of Other Denominations. Religious Affairs In General.

At the Second Presbyterian church yesterday morning, the pastor, Rev. N. M. Crowe, very feelingly thanked the congregation for their great kindness in granting him a three-months' vacation, rendered necessary by the ill-health of his daughter. He not only spoke of this evidence of the goodness of his congregation, but also referred to the fact that his entire pastorate with that church had been characterized by the love and thoughtfulness of the people, not a ripple appearing along any of the church lines to mar or hinder his work as a pastor.

Mr. Crowe preached from Jeremiah 2:13: "For my people have committed two evils; they have forsaken me, the fountain of living waters, and hewed them out cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water." He said in part:

"It would seem that the accusation by the prophet against the people was severe, but it was very true. It was no stronger than was necessary to arouse them to duty, and to give them an incentive to return from their evil ways. This may seem an inappropriate text to be used in this day of great enlightenment and progress, and yet viewed from a purely spiritual standpoint, no magnifying glass is needed to discover that its truths are applicable even today when human thought and tendency are to do the same things of which the people of Israel were accused. In this busy, hurried life we are prone to not give sufficient attention to the church, and to the thought and purposes of God's house.

"The text gives us the idea of desertion. The people had gone away from and forsaken God. Is not that the sin of many people today? This was the crime of the prodigal—desertion, forsaking home and father. This text comes home very close to us. One of the great difficulties in the evangelization of the world is the coldness and indifference of the multitudes of God's supposed followers. People are satisfied with too little of godliness, and Satan takes advantage of their coldness and lack of interest in righteousness and places them under heavy burdens. The devil is a most exacting taskmaster. He has no offer to make such as Christ offers, 'Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.' But life is not hopeless, the pleading voice still cries out in the language of Job, 'Deliver him from going down to the pit: I have found a ransom.'"

THE EXPERT'S THEORY.

It Was Too Inclusive and Weakened Him as a Witness.

One of the older members of the Baltimore bar tells this anecdote of the late Severn Teackle Wallis as illustrating the cleverness and sarcasm of Mr. Wallis:

Mr. Wallis was defending the will of a wealthy testator, and, as the lawyers say, when the estate is large a lawyer "will wrestle with a will with a will." A prominent physician was called to testify for those contesting the will. The doctor became restless under the lengthy and exhaustive cross examination of Mr. Wallis, and finally he petulantly exclaimed:

"Oh, Mr. Wallis, I believe the testator was insane?"

Mr. Wallis kept his temper and said quietly: "Doctor, you are the first person who has ever intimated in or out of court that the testator was insane. Why do you say he was insane?"

"I believe," the doctor replied, "that every man is more or less insane on some one subject."

"Is it your deliberate professional opinion," Mr. Wallis then asked, "expressed here in court under oath, that every man is more or less insane on some one subject?"

"Yes," the doctor replied; "I will say here under oath that from my reading, knowledge and experience I believe that every man is more or less insane on some one subject."

Then Mr. Wallis said in that fine tone of sarcasm for which he was noted, "Doctor, has it ever occurred to you that you are insane on the subject of insanity?"

Immediately the doctor fired up and exclaimed, "But, Mr. Wallis, I am not insane!"

Mr. Wallis arose and said: "Doctor, according to your own sworn theory, you must be insane on some subject. I pronounce you insane on the subject of insanity."

Court, jury and spectators laughed aloud, and nothing more was said about the testator being insane.—Baltimore Sun.

OLD DUTCH WERE CHOLERIC

They Called Each Other "Snappertjes," and Even Worse.

What a contentious crowd the inhabitants of the village, then known as Breuckelen, now part of Brooklyn, was!

The early records are filled with reports of inquiries into the cause of rioting and disturbances of the peace. The early court records consist largely of actions brought for slander and assault. It is recorded that a man was arrested for calling an official a "snappertje," another was put in jail, charged with having called his neighbor a "dick beeste" and still another was clapped into jail for having called a certain official a "bloodsucker." Some of the old Dutch records make interesting reading.

And the court meted out justice in all these cases with a regard for common sense and a disregard for statute law that one cannot help but admire. One instance of curious adjustment of

penalties may be cited:

The village tavern keeper and a contentious woman both appeared before the court, asking justice. They had quarreled. The woman had accused the innkeeper of watering his brandy, and he in turn had applied an opprobrious epithet to the woman. The court after hearing the evidence adjudged both to be guilty. With rare discrimination in making the punishment fit the crime the man was fined 6 gulden and the woman, who had impugned the quality of the brandy, was fined 20 gulden.

With hundreds of times the population today, the courts of Brooklyn do not have one-tenth the slander or assault cases that they had some 200 years ago, and, as for a riot, there has not been one of any magnitude even threatened in more than a score of years.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Pastor Crowe Returns Thanks to His Congregation For Granting Him a Vacation.

Revival Services so Successful That They Will Be Continued—Special Meetings of Other Denominations. Religious Affairs In General.

At the Second Presbyterian church yesterday morning, the pastor, Rev. N. M. Crowe, very feelingly thanked the congregation for their great kindness in granting him a three-months' vacation, rendered necessary by the ill-health of his daughter. He not only spoke of this evidence of the goodness of his congregation, but also referred to the fact that his entire pastorate with that church had been characterized by the love and thoughtfulness of the people, not a ripple appearing along any of the church lines to mar or hinder his work as a pastor.

Mr. Crowe preached from Jeremiah 2:13: "For my people have committed two evils; they have forsaken me, the fountain of living waters, and hewed them out cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water." He said in part:

BOLD BURGLARY IN WELLSVILLE

Ervin Busler Entered the House of Mrs. Alexander Polen Early Sunday Morning.

THIEF MADE A GOOD HAUL

But Was Captured Soon After the Theft, And is Being Held This Afternoon—John Birch, of Carrollton,
Lost $11 in the Deal.

The house of Mrs. Alexander Polen, on Center street, Wellsville, was broken into at an early hour Sunday morning, and $128.75 taken from a drawer of a dresser in the parlor.

John B. Birch was the only occupant of the room, and he was awakened at a little after 1 o'clock by a noise near the corner of the room where the dresser stood. He could plainly see the man bending over the drawer, and at once gave the alarm. The thief fled down the hall and was met by Mrs. Polen, who had no difficulty in recognizing the burglar as Ervin Busler, a brakeman on the C. & P. railroad, whose home is in Beaver Falls.

The thief succeeded in escaping from the house, but Birch in the meantime had started for city hall, where he notified the police. Officers Thorn and Madden, accompanied by Mrs. Polen, went to the home of Miss Kate Macbeth, in the lower end of town, where Busler boards, and found him in bed, apparently fast asleep. He denied having been away from the house that night, but was placed under arrest and the room searched. In a clothes press wrapped in a blanket was found $102, and it is thought he must have dropped the balance along the street.

The man was taken to jail until this morning, when he was given a hearing. He pleaded not guilty and the hearing is being held before Mayor Dennis this afternoon.

Mrs. Polen was able to identify the thief readily, as she had become acquainted with him at the Macbeth home some time ago. On Washington's birthday he borrowed $5 of her, and on the day of the Sebring-Taylor wedding, when he was one of the crew on the special train, he got another $5 from her, so that he knew she had considerable money. The amount of money Birch lost was $11.

M. P. Revival Resumed.

The evangelistic meetings, which began yesterday in the Methodist Protestant church, were unusually impressive and largely attended. The Sunday school had a special program, with a full orchestra, and the exercises were full of interest. The public service in the auditorium at 11 a. m. was the feature of the day. A large class was baptized, after which the sacrament of the Lord's supper occurred. Prof. Evans, the blind singer, of Pittsburg, will sing to-night.

Grows Out of the Removal of a Sid-

Lisbon, Mar. 4.—(Special.)—B. S. Ambler, as receiver of the Salem railroad, has filed a petition in common pleas court, against J. T. Brooks, asking judgment in the sum of $3,000 and interest from June 30, 1897. The amount claimed is sought as damages for the forcible removal of a siding on Broadway in Salem.

The suit made its appearance in court at Lisbon this morning. It is against Brooks as an officer of the Pennsylvania company and grows out of the placing of a switch on Broadway in Salem by the Salem railroad five years ago. The switch was placed by an agreement between the Salem corporation and the Wirsching Church Organ company, who owned the land, Ambler says he has never been in accord with the ideas of Brooks, either

Anxiety of Boatmen and Property
Owners Along the Shore
Passed.

NO DAMAGE IN THIS LOCALITY

Navigation Can Be Resumed as Soon
As an Expected Raise Comes.
Twenty Million Bushels of Coal
Waiting to Come Down.

An anxious period for boatmen and those who own property along the river has passed and no damage was done.

The ice started moving out of the Ohio river this morning. The stream had been solidly closed for more than a week, so that many persons have been crossing on foot at various points until the warm spell made such a course dangerous.

The ice was expected to move yesterday, and did take a start shortly after noon, moving about 20 feet. The banks all day Sunday were thronged with people who were anxious to see the break-up, while the owners of the coal floats and shanty boats were busily engaged in preparing lines and arranging to avoid the crash.

At 1:30 o'clock this morning a loud report and a grinding noise told the anxious watchers that the ice was on the move, and it passed out of the channel quietly, leaving considerable shore ice. But, as a raise is expected during the night, this will not last long. At a point opposite the Metsch property an opening not over 100 feet was left in the ice, while above and below the whole channel was cleaned, but it was all forced out at 6 o'clock this morning.

Navigation, which has been at a standstill for three weeks, will be resumed at once, and the Queen City will pass up tomorrow.

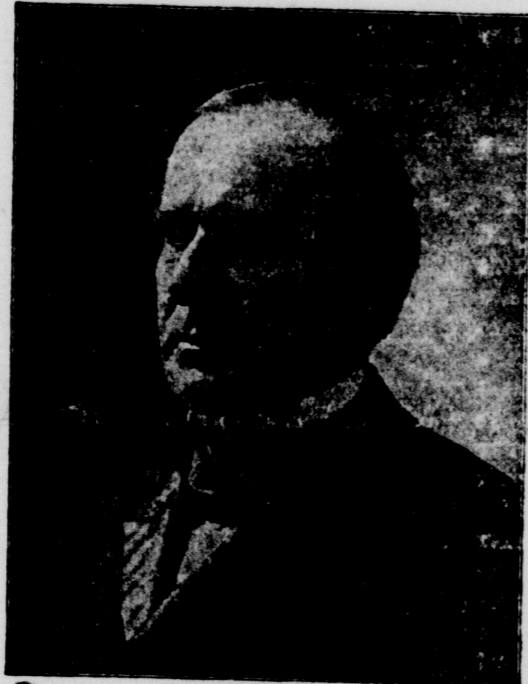

The rivers at Pittsburg were rising at almost every point yesterday and rivermen expected trouble from the ice. The towboats and loaded coal pieces now being moved cannot be taken from their moorings after the heavy ice once starts, as the thick cakes would jam holes in their sides and send them to the bottom in little time. The river coal combine, it is estimated, has in the neighborhood of 20,000,000 bushels of coal loaded in the upper pools. The gorge at West Newton, on the Youghiogheny, broke last evening at 5 o'clock, but did no damage. The largest of the ice gorges on the Monongahela is above lock No 9, and last night was reported to be still holding fast. It is from the breaking up of this gorge that the river interests have the most to fear.

as a railroad officer or as an individual. When Brooks ordered the removal of the switch he was compelled to recognize a provision in the contract that the switch remain until the property owners desired to lay a sidewalk. The case was brought into court here some time ago, when, the plaintiff claims, "the defendant, with utter disregard of good morals, deliberately imposed upon the court" by swearing that he intended to lay a sidewalk. Ambler says the sidewalk has never been laid and Brooks only acted as he did to gratify malice and injure the plaintiff.

Wants the Board Mandamus.

Lisbon, March 4.—(Special.)—Trouble between the board of education and the board of trustees of district No. 2, in St. Clair township, terminated in a suit in court this morning. Oscar Birch, a resident of that township, brought the action and stated that the parties had refused for three months to elect a teacher, because the trustees recommended the appointment of one Croft and the board refused to confirm the applicant. In resentment of the refusal on the part of the board the trustees refused to take any action and Birch asks a writ of mandamus to compel them to choose a teacher. Birch has six children of school age.

There was no session of police court yesterday, but McBee's father came down Sunday afternoon and had him released after putting up security for his appearance this evening, when he will pay for his fun.

The police were out yesterday with a determination to round up a few violators of the Sunday liquor laws. About 8:40 they had everything arranged to pinch Billy Morrow's place, which is located in the opera house block. When they got inside, headed by Chief Thompson, they found a nice batch of offenders. Beside the proprietor, William Morrow, the following lineup were notified to pay their respects to Mayor Davidson this evening: John Davies, Peter McGinnis, William West, Joe Keenan, Joe Burrows, H. J. McGovern, Howard Bettridge, Ben Conkle, Clem Maloney, J. Conkle, J. Downey, Joseph Price, "Fatty" Hughes.

Morrow will receive a fine of $25 and costs on a charge of keeping his saloon open on Sunday, while the balance will pay $9.60 for loitering about the place on the Sabbath.

Mayor Davidson stated this morning that this was only the beginning and that the movement would be kept up until every saloon man in the city came to understand that the law must be observed.

A ROBBER CAPTURED

The Smith's Ferry Burglar Has
Been Caught and Has
Confessed

ROBBED THE RALSTON HOUSE

Taking Advantage of the Family's
Absence at a Funeral—The Same
Residence Again Visited by Bur-
glar Last Week.

The culprit who robbed the Ralston house, near Smith's Ferry, several weeks since, while the occupants were attending a funeral, was captured by the united efforts of Constable Normile, David Ralston and James Fulton late Saturday evening.

He gave the name of Walter Messer and stated that his home at Mount Carmel, Pa. At the time of his capture he was wearing a suit of clothes belonging to Mr. Ralston and had on his person a ring stolen from the house. He offered no resistance and confessed the crime when Mr. Ralston recognized the property.

Messer refused to implicate any one else in connection with the robbery, and stated that he alone was guilty. This is not believed to be true, as he was cooking his supper when captured in a vacant house where it is believed a gang of tramps have made their headquarters.

Another theory advanced is that Messer was a member of the gang who make their headquarters at Congo, as he was traced to Chester a few days ago.

The Ralston house was again robbed last Thursday night, but little of value was secured. It is thought Messer was preparing for a third haul when captured. He was lodged in the county jail at Beaver and will be given a hearing this afternoon.

Big Postal Business.

Postmaster Baird's report for the month of February shows the following: Sales of stamps, $135.35; money orders, $1,117.56. This is the largest amount of stamps and money orders ever sold at this office in 28 days.

Lost the Run of the Calendar.

A Dixonville lady, who formerly lived in the East End, sent her little girl to town to purchase groceries yesterday. The little girl finally found a drug store open and learned that it was Sunday.

East End Notes.

The wind closed the door of Wilson's drug store yesterday afternoon with sufficient force to break a $5 light.

Miss Bertha Grant is suffering from a badly mashed finger, which was caught under a rocker yesterday.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. William Lawson died Saturday evening and was buried from the home yesterday afternoon.

Rev. J. R. Greene, who preached at the dedication of the new church in charge of Rev. Mr. Aikers in Indiana county, Pa., states that the church was erected at a cost of $27,000, and is one of the most modern in the state. Andrew Carnegie presented the congregation with a $2,000 pipe organ. The church is located in a rural district.

BONNET FOR MRS. M'KINLEY.

The Hat She Wore at Inauguration Designed in Ohio.

Columbus, March 4.—Mrs. McKinley wore on inauguration day a bonnet made in Ohio by an Ohio woman in competition for a $50 prize which she won. This bonnet was chosen from 5,000 designs sent in competition for the prize which was offered by a millinery trade journal. Its designer, Mrs. Agnes Holland, of Columbus, bought a photograph of Mrs. McKinley and studied the face carefully while she originated the design. She had seen the president's wife several times and was familiar with her face and coloring, both of which facts contributed to her success.

The hat is rather small, following in outline the popular flat shape of the day, and is made of jet tulle and fastened with fancy jet pins. Touches of silver galeon brighten it.

Burglars Raid Depots.

Kent, O., March 4.—A gang of burglars mounted on a hand car, stolen near Canton, came north over the Wheeling & Lake Erie railroad Saturday night, and raided the depots at Michler, Suffield, Mogadore and Brimfield. They stole money, tickets, baggage and express matter valued at about $200. At Suffield two general stores were entered and some goods stolen. From the trestle over the Cuyahoga river, in Kent, the robbers dumped the car into the water and escaped.

Stabbed in the Back.

Youngstown, O., March 4.—As a result of a dispute over a leasehold, Peter Sarver, a tenant of a farm near New Springfield, lies at the point of death from the effects of a knife wound in the back, inflicted, it is alleged, by Solomon Gross, owner of the property, who endeavored to dispossess Sarver.

BUCKEYE BRIEFS.

Two cases of smallpox at Youngstown.

O. S. Pollock has been appointed postmaster at Lucerne, Columbiana county.

There is talk of building an electric railway from Canton to New Philadelphia by way of Zoar.

Joseph Wardle, formerly of Bridgeport, was murdered by drunken Italians at Terre Haute, Ind. The murderers escaped.

A car became unmanageable on a down grade at Youngstown, ran away, struck an electric light pole and killed Conductor Frank G. Wiseman, aged 23.

While driving out of a barn at Barberton, George Eby, ex-chief of the fire department there, struck his head against a beam and was fatally injured.

There is not an empty house in Empire, and hardly a day passes without inquiries for houses to rent. There will be considerable building this spring.

Bertrand Bell, 26 years of age, said to be a New York millionaire, is learning the practical side of railroading by working in the B. & O. Southwestern shops in Chillicothe.

Fire started in the Sutliff block, at Warren Sunday and caused losses aggregating $10,000. Mrs. Priscilla Shoenberger was rescued from a third-story window by firemen just in time to save her life.

Plans have been completed for the sale of 30,000 acres of coal land in Belmont county, O., to the Empire Coal and Coke company, of Wheeling. The options call for the outlay of at least $360,000 for coal under the ground.

Steubenville council will probably accept the bid of George A. Maxwell for the Pleasant Heights Street railway franchise. Maxwell and Clarence H. Stroble, of Pittsburgh, have purchased 53 acres of land at Pleasant Heights and have options on more.

Fatal Fire at a Pottery.

Marion, Ind., March 4.—Fire at Gas City destroyed the Gas City pottery works, causing $6,000 loss. One fireman was killed and others badly injured. D. C. Cox, owner of the pottery, was seriously injured by falling debris.

TELEPHONE DECISION

In Favor of the Independent
Telephone Companies.

DEFEATS BELL CO.'S PATENT

United States Court Decides That the Microphone Transmitter Can Be
Used By Anybody—No Monopoly
Allowed.

An important decision handed down by Judge Brown, of the United States court for the northern district of Massachusetts, removes all question of the right of independent telephone companies to make and to use the best and most approved apparatus known. This is the outcome of the suit of the American Bell Telephone company against the National Telephone company, a manufacturing concern, of Boston, Mass. This suit was fought to prolong the life of the patent on telephone transmitters until 1908. This, however, disposes of the matter and the court held that the use of the microphone is open to any one in the United States.

The American Bell Telephone company and its allies have endeavored to make great capital out of the litigation. The suit was instituted in July, 1895, and has just now received its first decision, although the Bell people have practically ceased to urge their claims to the patent. The question has been one of merit for the last two years. However, it is a relief to the independent people to have a decision in this case favorable to their interests and annulling the Bell patent which is the effect of the ruling made by Judge Brown. It clears the atmosphere and everybody knows just where they are.

NEW RAILS FOR THE C. & P.

Report That the Old Will Be Taken
Up And Replaced.

A report from Cleveland is to the effect that nearly all the rails on the C. & P. are to be taken up, for the reason that they are not heavy enough to stand the pressure of the immense freight traffic over that line. They are 70-pound rails and are still in perfect condition, except the ends, which are flared.

These flared ends will be cut off and the rails will then be transferred to the C. A. & C., and put down there, as they are heavy enough for the work of that line. The C. A. & C., however, is to be very greatly improved, and many of the grades will be remedied, and curves somewhat straightened.

Reward for Bates' Capture.

The Jefferson county commissioners offer a reward of $250 for the apprehension of Matthew Bates, who is charged with the murder of Corporal John W. Stainbaugh, United States army.

GEON ACQUITTED.

Result of the Trial of a Local Grocer on the Charge of Selling Oleo.

Ed A. Geon returned to this city Saturday evening from Lisbon, where he had been tried before a jury on a charge brought by the state dairy and food department for selling oleomargarine.

The case was set for trial on Friday afternoon, but some difficulty was experienced in empaneling a jury. This was completed at about 7 o'clock Friday evening, and the session lasted until 11 o'clock.

The interested parties were compelled to adjourn the hearing to the county court room on account of the large attendance at the trial. Attorneys Fawcett and J. A. Martin represented the state, while Messrs. Steele, of Columbus, and Judge Moore, of Lisbon, looked after Mr. Geon's interests.

The Lisbon correspondent sending out the first report of the case was in error regarding the Capitol City Dairy company's connection with the affair, as Mr. Geon stated Saturday night that although the dairy people assisted in the defense, he never had any positive guarantee that they would, and had he lost the case there was nothing to compel the company to pay the penalty. He doubted whether they would have done so had the decision been different.

When the trial was resumed on Saturday morning at 8:30 o'clock the court room was almost filled with grocermen and others interested in the outcome. Miss Virginia Hobbs, of Hancock county, W. Va., was the principal witness for the state, although the prosecution did not succeed in developing anything of a damaging nature by her testimony. Attorney Steele bringing out the fact that the girl had been retained by Inspector Cowen to buy the stuff that he might avoid being known in the transaction. The attorney also succeeded in confusing the witness to such an extent that she testified to many things the state's attorneys did not intend that she should tell, so that it was apparent, as in the case against Frank Kratz in this city some time ago, that the defendant would be acquitted.

The case went to the jury at about 4 o'clock and they were out an hour and a half, returning a verdict of acquittal.

HANGED HERSELF.

A Woman Near Salineville Committed Suicide—Her Son Found

Her Dead.

Salineville, March 4.—Mrs. Kate Gilson, who lives on a farm with her son, about three miles east of Salineville, went into a smoke house Thursday afternoon, fastened a rope around her neck, kicked away the stool and soon was in eternity. Her son found the dead body late in the evening when he came home from his work.

Mrs. Gilson was the wife of the late Richard Gilson, who a few years ago lost his life by falling on a hay fork. She leaves a son, grown to manhood and a daughter who married Mr. Frazer and lives in Lisbon. She gave no intimation to anyone of her purpose.

In Justice McLane's Court.

The case of A. W. Scott versus F. F. Debolt for $27.36, claimed due as a balance on a set of plans furnished defendant for a house on Chestnut street, is being tried before a jury in the court of Justice McLane this afternoon. The following jury has been empaneled: John Gamble, William Kinney, John Harris, Frank Crook, William Kent and A. Watson, Sr.

Struck by a Street Car.

A milk wagon owned by Smith Bros. was struck by a Southside street car on Cook street this morning and had a wheel broken off. Those who saw the accident claim the motorman was not to blame, as he was ringing his gong and the man drove on the track in front of the car.

His Classmate's Anniversary.

Father Smyth, of this city, and Father Halligan, of Wellsville, will leave Wednesday morning for Cleveland, where they will attend the tenth anniversary of ordination to the priesthood of Father Bell, who was a classmate of Father Halligan.

Lost $250 in the Street.

FUNERAL OF EVARTS.

Pallbearers Were Former Farm Employees—Large Gathering Present.

Windsor, Vt., March 4.—The remains of Hon. William M. Evarts, who died in New York last Thursday, were brought to Windsor in a special car, accompanied by members of the family, save Mrs. Evarts and Mrs. Beaman, who were taken to the Evarts mansion for the night. A brief service was held at the house Sunday morning for the family and the public services were held in St. Paul's church at noon. Rev. E. N. Goddard, the rector, officiating. This is the church in which Mr. Evarts was married in August, 1845. The church was filled with a large, sympathizing crowd of people. The floral remembrances were profuse. The pallbearers were all former farm employees of Mr. Evarts. Besides the immediate family there were others present from out of town.

CARMAN OUT ON BAIL.

Sick American Contractor Furnished $10,000 Cash Bail in Manila.

Manila, March 4.—By direction of Major General MacArthur, D. M. Carman, an American contractor, who was taken into custody in February charged with aiding the Philippine insurgents, has been released on $10,000 cash bail. Major Kulp, medical officer, certified that Carman was a very sick man, and that further confinement was apt to cause his death. Brigadier General G. W. Davis, provost marshal of Manila, says that the case had been very carefully considered before the release was ordered, as it established the precedent in the Philippines of permitting persons charged with aiding and abetting the insurrection to be at large. Carman is under surveillance in Manila and can be brought to court whenever he is wanted.

THE ACT OF A HERO.

He Snatched a Life Out of a Pool of Molten Metal.

Three men came up carrying a long iron shaft, which had been cut in two, so that an iron ring could be inserted between the two halves. An empty crucible a foot wide and deep hung in the ring. The forward end of the pole held a crossbar, making it, as it were, a huge T. Two men held the T part of the pole; the third grasped the rear end. The crucible hung between. The remainder of the molten metal from the caldron was tipped into one crucible, and the men trotted off with it, the two in front with strained faces, the man behind driving them complacently, the oddest team in the world. He steered them through a doorway, and they emptied their crucible into a small mold. As they went they kept step in an unusual manner. Instead of stepping out right foot with right foot the left man's right leg and the right man's left leg went forward together, knee with knee, foot with foot. We asked why.

"Of course such a thing never happened?"

"Yes, it did once. One of the men went down. The other jumped clear, but the fellow on the floor swam in it."

"Horrible! Of course he died instantly, poor man?"

"No; the foreman of the carrying gang, taking in the situation, made several terrific leaps for him, jumped right into the middle of it, picked him up and threw him out of it bodily. Then he jumped clear himself, with the stuff dropping from his shoes. They both went to the hospital, but they are all right now. Heroic, wasn't it? By the way, that's him, the foreman, Jim H., over there now. He is still looking after those fellows."

We looked over to where a big muscular fellow was directing a gang of men manipulating molten metal. He was not disfigured, and he did not look like a hero, but thereafter the grime that covered him seemed noble indeed, and he would not say a word of his feat when we sought to talk with him about it. But Jim H. will probably never want for a job as long as Baldwin's is working.—From an Article on the Baldwin Locomotive Works in Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly.

Too Much For the Cab.

One of the wealthiest wine merchants in Paris and also one of its stoutest citizens was the hero of an episode which caused much laughter in the Rue Princesse.

M. R., the corpulent man, hailed a cab, which came alongside the curb. He opened the door and, getting a purchase on the railing of "cabby's" seat, tried to hoist himself in.

But his weight was too much for the vehicle, which careened over and, as the sidewalk is very narrow, crashed into a window of a printing office. M. R. had meanwhile collapsed on the ground, and "cabby" by a miracle clung to his uncertain perch.

Then followed a stormy period. The printer came out and wanted to have the price of his broken window, the fat man tried to get the cabby to drive him away, and cabby refused to take any such load on board.

Finally all parties adjourned to the police station, where the difficulty was straightened out, and M. R. set to work looking for another cab.—Paris Temps.

With Emphasis.

"Say, Joe," remarked Stroller, who was anxious for a jaunt, "what do you say to a tramp after dinner?"

"Generally," replied Joe Kose, "I say, 'Get out, or I'll turn the dog on to you.'"—Philadelphia Record.

MONDAY, MARCH 4, 1901.

FOUR YEARS MORE.

The first administration of William McKinley closed today. It has included an eventful period in American history. A war with a foreign power has been fought, the first in more than half a century. Cuba has been freed from oppression and started on the road to independence. New laurels have been won for the American army and navy, and the territory over which the American flag floats has been extended.

For the first time in our history, the United States, by the fortunes of war, has been compelled to assume the government and control of a distant, old world territory. The United States has risen to new dignity and won new respect in the family of nations. We are recognized as one of the great powers of the world. To say that there have been no mistakes in the management of war affairs and of the Philippine question would be unreasonable. But such mistakes as have been made were neither great nor glaring. There has been no national humiliation; on the contrary, there has arisen among our own people, as among all nations, increased respect for the American flag and for American statesmanship.

Throughout the most trying period in our recent history the country has prospered as never before, every branch of home industry extending and flourishing, while our foreign commerce has acquired an importance exceeding every expectation.

William McKinley has proven himself a wise and conservative president, acting always with vigilance and prudence for the interests of the people and for the honor of the United States. There are problems only partially solved, which must be disposed of during his second administration, but American statesmanship is equal to the task. None of the questions remaining are so difficult, nor are any so difficult likely to arise, as those which have been solved, wisely and well, in the past four years.

The people have every confidence in the president and his advisers, as was shown by election results last fall, and look with pride and thankfulness upon the imposing ceremonies which are taking place in Washington today. With a senate and house both Republican and likely to continue so, the inauguration today of the tried and trusted McKinley as president and the gifted and courageous Roosevelt as vice president furnishes an assurance that the nation's interests will be carefully looked after, for another four years at least, and that the current of prosperity, now flowing so strongly, is not likely to be impeded or diverted to our disadvantage.

WORK OF CONGRESS.

The Fifty-sixth congress has passed into history. It has not done all that it was expected to do, and neither has any of its predecessors. But it has redeemed Republican pledges and given the nation a sound currency law which has the approval of the ablest business men in America and the soundest students of financial affairs. For this, if for no other reason, it deserves a nation's thanks. Another important work, performed by congress in the closing hours, was the reduction of the so-called war taxes. By this legislation, not only will $40,000,000 a year be saved to the people, but an endless amount of annoyance. Particularly will the relief from vexatious stamps now required on checks, receipts, telegrams, etc., be welcome. Nobody objected to paying his share of war taxes when the war was on and the nation needed the money. But now that the need is past, curtailment is wise. Too much money in the treasury is usually an incentive to extravagance, whereas economy should ever be the watchword, and all unnecessary burdens on the people's shoulders be avoided.

Those who went to Washington to see Teddy Roosevelt in a cowboy rig, riding a bucking broncho, were probably disappointed. Vice President Roosevelt has left all that behind him and for the next four years will be a dignified statesman. He has the qualities which the American people dearly love, and the idea that a man of his intellectual brilliancy and moral courage will sink into obscurity in the vice presidential office is preposterous.

Golden Rule Jones, of Toledo, has started another non-partisan movement. Its object is to re-elect Jones. If it meets with the fate that his gubernatorial boom did, it will not attract widespread attention.

Maude Gonne, the "Irish Joan of Arc," is a true Hibernian with a bump of combativeness largely developed.

It's a proud day for Ohio.

ABOUT THE POTTERIES.

The decorating department of the Burford pottery is rushed with orders just at present, and an additional printer has been put on.

A number of employes of the National plant, who have been idle during the past week, have resumed work.

The workmen employed by the Erie Roofing company, which is placing the rock asbestos roof on the Laughlin No. 2 pottery, have made rapid progress and expect to complete their work in two weeks. The company has also secured the contract for placing a slate roof on the new library.

Local union No. 16, saggermakers, will hold a smoker in their rooms this evening, to which all the other organizations have been invited. The saggermakers have been organized for several years, and this is their first effort in that line. NEW STATION.

Report That It Will Be Erected Now Confirmed.

The report, published exclusively in the News Review a few days ago, that a new station building would be erected by the Pennsylvania company at First street, Southside, is now confirmed by good authority. The further fact that the ground here used by the company was donated under the express condition that a station should be erected within a specified time, which will soon expire, would seem to leave no doubt that this much needed building will be erected at an early date.

Twenty-one of the 23 passengers arriving this morning left the train at this place. This about represents the comparative passenger traffic at the two stations, while nearly all the freight arriving at Chester would be left at the new station if any protection from the weather were afforded.

The merchants very much dislike to haul their goods a distance of two miles through the mud while stations are provided at other places on the road where not one-fourth as much business is done. The proposed improvement cannot come too soon, is the way they look at it.

FIRST WARD COUNCIL.

Henry E. Bullock is a Deserving Candidate.

[Communicated.]

In our announcement column today will be seen the name of Henry E. Bullock, who is a candidate for council in the First ward. Mr. Bullock while probably young in years, has had every opportunity for the past seven years to come in close touch with all the workings of the different councils. He has been in active newspaper work during that time in this city, and has handled the articles whereby the citizens ascertained just what the city solons were doing.

To handle these matters the newspaper man has to be able to be more in touch with the workings of all the committees than even the regular council members. Further than this, Mr. Bullock has been a resident of the First ward for the past 22 years, and is entirely familiar with the needs so far as improvement is concerned in that vicinity. The voters of the First ward could not do better than to support him at the nomination and election.

Great Drawing to a Bobtail Pair.

"The most remarkable draw I ever saw made at poker was in a Chicago club one night," said a Chicago man. "There were five of us in a little social game, with a limit of $25 and all jack pots. A friend of mine whom I will call Jones was dealing. I was first under the guns and passed, as did also the two men sitting next. The fifth man—we will say his name was Brown—opened the pot for $5. Jones didn't have the shadow of a thing in his hands, but he raised Brown $10, intending to stand pat and bluff it out. Brown had three aces, and he came back at Jones with $10 better.

"Now, instead of laying down, as a wise man should in a case like that, Jones determined to see it through. He knew, of course, that it would be useless to try to bluff, so he drew three cards to a king and queen of spades. Brown had drawn two cards to his aces and had got a small pair. As a bait he led off the betting with $5. Jones hadn't looked at his hand until Brown bet, and when he picked up his cards he almost fell dead. He had drawn an ace, jack and ten of spades, making a royal flush. They raised each other back and forth until one or the other had all his money in, and when the hands were shown the game broke up right there."—Washington Post.

The Time to Break the Rule.

There is an anecdote in some volume of French theatrical memoirs narrating an experience of Mlle. Clairon, the great tragic actress, with a pupil of hers, a girl of strong natural gifts for the histrionic art, but far too frequent and too exuberant in her gesticulation. So when the pupil was once to appear before the public in a recitation Mlle. Clairon bound the girl's arms to her side by a stiff thread and sent her thus upon the stage.

With the first strong feeling she had to express the pupil tried to raise her arms, only to be restrained by the thread. A dozen times in the course of her recitation she was prevented from making the gestures she desired until at the very end she could stand it no longer, and in the climax of her emotion she broke her bonds and swung her hands to her head.

When she came off the stage, she went humbly to where Mlle. Clairon was standing in the wings and apologized for having snapped the thread. "But you did quite right!" said the teacher. "That was the time to make the gesture, not before!"—Brander Matthews in Harper's Magazine.

A Chinese Mother-in-law Story.

"The Experiences of a British Pharmacist in China" was the title of an address by Mr. Frank Browne, who was introduced as the government analyst at Hongkong.

As illustrating the Chinese regard for filial piety the lecturer told an interesting mother-in-law story. A man and his wife maltreated the husband's mother. As a punishment the scene of the act was openly cursed, the active agents were put to death, and the mother of the wife was bamboozed, branded and exiled for her daughter's crime. The house in which the offenders lived was dug up from the foundations. Moreover, the scholars of the district were precluded from attending public examinations, and even the magistrates were deprived of their office. These drastic measures were designed to render the empire filial.—London News.

M'KINLEY AND ROOSEVELT SWORN IN AT NOON TODAY

A Most Impressive Ceremony Witnessed by Great Crowds at the National Capital.

THE PRESIDENT'S INAUGURAL ADDRESS IN FULL

For the First Time In 25 Years the President Rode Without a Successor to His Office In His Carriage—A Great Procession Led by the Rough Rider Band With Veterans of the Civil War Acting as the President's Escort—Eventful History Reviewed by the President.

Washington, March 4.—William McKinley, of Ohio, today was inducted into the presidential office, and also Theodore Roosevelt, of New York, became vice president of the United States.

The ceremony that marked this second assumption by President McKinley of the cares of state was most impressive and full of suggestion of the development of the republic during the past four years.

The parade was a magnificent affair. The civil contingent was quite up to the average in point of numbers; the men in soldierly uniforms outnumbered the civilians in line by more than three to one. In the ranks were men who participated in fighting late years for their country. In the place of honor, as the president's escort, marched soldiers of the Civil War. At their head marched the Rough Rider band.

No Successor With President.

For the first time in a quarter of a century the president rode from the white house to the capitol without a successor beside him in his carriage. Grant was the last of the presidents of the United States up to this time to occupy a similar position. President McKinley had for his companion in his carriage members of the committee specially chosen by congress to take charge of the inauguration headed by Senator Mark Hanna, himself a national figure.

The nations of the world, great and small, paid their tribute to the president in their attendance at the ceremonies at the capitol and in reviewing the great parade. In addition to the splendid diplomatic representation, there was present for the first time the head of government of our next door neighbor, the dominion of Canada, in the person of Lord Minto, the imperial governor general.

The American navy, which has so distinguished itself in the past four years, was represented in the ceremonies more numerous than ever before. Half a dozen warships, more than have assembled in the Potomac since the days of the Civil War, contributed, through their sailors and marines, one of the most unique and enjoyable features of the ceremony, marching over a thousand strong along the streets. Down on the water front lay moored the famous old flagship Hartford, inspiring stirring recollections of the fierce naval combats of the Civil War, while at the navy yard floated the grim double-turreted monitor Puritan, symbolic of later-day warfare. Further down the Potomac lay other vessels unable to get up the river to Washington, but whose crews swelled the list of paraders.

Number of Governors Participated.

There were 14 governors, representing north, south and west, most of them accompanied by numerous staffs. There were Governor Odell, of New York; Governor Yates, of Illinois; Governor Bliss, of Michigan; Governor Van Sandt, of Minnesota; Governor Richards, of Wyoming; Governor Stone, of Pennsylvania; Governor Dietrich, of Nebraska; Governor Shaw, of Iowa; Governor Crane, of Massachusetts; Governor McMillin, of Tennessee; Governor Dockery, of Missouri; Governor Barnes, of Oklahoma; Governor Smith, of Maryland; Governor Longino, of Mississippi.

Though worn and weary, the legislative branch of the national government faithfully executed its part in the day's ceremonies. The protracted sessions of the last few days, involving work day and night, imposed severe physical strain upon the senators and representatives, yet when the time came to close up the task of legislation and turn to the inauguration of the president, all was in readiness in the capitol.

About 11 a. m. there was a gathering of high government officials, diplomats and specially invited guests in the United States senate chamber.

About 11:50 a. m. the inauguration of Theodore Roosevelt, of New York, as vice president of the United States occurred. The ceremonies in the senate were attended by the president and a distinguished company.

About 12 noon President McKinley took the oath of office in the presence of the assembled multitude. He delivered his inaugural address, which was as follows:

Speech of the President.

My Fellow Citizens:

When we assembled here on the 4th of March, 1897, there was great anxiety with regard to our currency and credit. None exists now. The treasury receipts were inadequate to meet current obligations of the government. Now they are sufficient for all public needs, and we have a surplus instead of a deficit. Then I felt constrained to convene the congress in extraordinary session to devise revenues to pay the ordinary expenses of the government. Now I have the satisfaction to announce that the congress just closed has reduced taxation in the sum of $41,000,000. Then there was deep solicitude because of the long depression in our manufacturing, mining, agricultural and mercantile industries and the consequent distress of the laboring population. Now every avenue of production is crowded with activity, labor is well employed and American products find good markets at home and abroad.

Our diversified productions, however, are increasing in such unprecedented volume as to admonish us of the necessity of still further enlarging our foreign markets by broader commercial relations. For this purpose reciprocal trade arrangements with other nations should in liberal spirit be fully cultivated and promoted.

National Verdict Mainly Executed.

The national verdict of 1896 has for the most part been executed. What ever remains unfulfilled is a continuing obligation resting with undiminished force upon the executive and the congress. But, fortunate as our condition is, its permanence can only be assured by sound business methods and strict economy in national administration and legislation. We should not permit our great prosperity to lead us to reckless ventures in business or prodigality in public expenditures. While the congress determines the objects and the sum of appropriations, the officials of the executive departments are responsible for honest and faithful disbursement, and it should be their constant care to avoid waste and extravagance.

Honesty, capacity and industry are nowhere more indispensable than in public employment. These should be fundamental requisites to original appointment and the surest guarantees against removal.

Four years ago we stood on the brink of war without the people knowing it and without any preparation or effort at preparation for the impending peril. I did all that in honor could be done to avert the war, but without avail. It became inevitable; and the congress at its first regular session, without party division provided money in anticipation of the crisis and in preparation to meet

it. It came. The result was signally favorable to American arms and in the highest degree honorable to the government. It imposed upon us obligations from which we cannot escape and from which it would be dishonorable to seek to escape. We are now at peace with the world, and it is my fervent prayer that if differences arise between us and other powers they may be settled by peaceful arbitration and that hereafter we may be spared the horrors of war.

Appreciates Great Responsibilities.

Entrusted by the people for a second time with the office of president, I enter upon its administration appreciating the great responsibilities which attach to this renewed honor and commission, promising unreserved devotion on my part to their faithful discharge and reverently invoking for my guidance the direction and favor of Almighty God. I should shrink from the duties this day assumed if I did not feel that in the performance I should have the co-operation of the wise and patriotic men of all parties. It encourages me for the great task which I now undertake to believe that those who voluntarily committed to me the trust imposed upon the chief executive of the republic will give to me generous support in my duties to "preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States," and to care that the laws be faithfully executed. The national purpose is indicated through a national election. It is the constitutional method of ascertaining the public will. When once it is registered it is a law to us all, and faithful observance should follow its decrees.

Sectionalism Mostly Disappeared.

Strong hearts and helpful hands are needed, and, fortunately, we have them in every part of our beloved country. We are reunited. Sectionalism has disappeared. Division on public questions can no longer be traced by the war maps of 1861. Existing problems demand the thought and quicken the conscience of the country and the responsibility for their presence, as well as for their righteous settlement, rests upon us all—no more upon me than upon you. There are some national questions in the solution of which patriotism should exclude partisanship. Magnifying their difficulties will not take them off our hands nor facilitate their adjustment. Distrust of the capacity, integrity and high purposes of the American people will not be an inspiring theme for future political contests. Dark pictures and gloomy forebodings are worse than useless. These only becloud, they do not help to point the way of safety and honor. "Hope maketh not ashamed." The prophets of evil were not the builders of the republic, nor in its crisis since have they saved or served it. The faith of the fathers was a mighty force in its creation, and the faith of their descendants has wrought its progress and furnished its defenders. They are obstructionists who despair and who would destroy confidence in the ability of our people to solve wisely and for civilization the mighty problems resting upon them. The American people, entrenched in freedom at home, take their love for it with them wherever they go, and they reject as mistaken and unworthy the doctrine that we lose our own liberties by securing the enduring foundations of liberty to others. Our institutions will not deteriorate by extension and our sense of justice will not abate under tropic suns in distant seas. As heretofore, so hereafter, will the nation demonstrate its fitness to administer any new estate which events devolve upon it, and in the fear of God will "take occasion by the hand and make the bounds of freedom wider yet." If there are those among us who would make our way more difficult, we must not be disheartened, but the more earnestly dedicate ourselves to the task upon which we have rightly entered. The path of progress is seldom smooth. New things are often found hard to do. Our fathers found them so. We find them so. They are inconvenient. They cost us something. But are we not made better for the effort and sacrifice, and are not those we serve lifted up and blessed?

Opposition Ever Present.

"We will be consoled, too, with the fact that opposition has confronted every onward movement of the republic from its opening hour until now, but without success. The republic has marched on and on, and its every step has exalted freedom and humanity. We are undergoing the same ordeal as did our predecessors nearly a century ago. We are following the course they blazed. They triumphed. Will their successors falter and plead organic impotency in the nation? Surely after 125 years of achievement for mankind we will not surrender our equality with other powers on matters fundamental and essential to nationality. With no such purpose was the nation created. In no such spirit has it developed its full and independent sovereignty. We adhere to the principle of equality among ourselves, and by no act of ours will we assign to ourselves a subordinate rank in the family of nations.

My fellow citizens, the public events of the past four years have gone into history. They are too near to justify recital. Some of them were unforeseen; many of them momentous and far-reaching in their consequences to ourselves and our relations with the rest of the world. The part which the United States bore so honorably in the thrilling scenes in China, while new to American life, has been in harmony with its true spirit and best traditions, and in dealing with these results its policy will be that of moderation and fairness.

Face Important Question.

We face at this moment a most important question—that of the future relations of the United States and Cuba. With our near neighbors we must remain close friends. The declaration of the purposes of this government in the resolution of April 20, 1898, must be made good. Ever since the evacuation of the island by the army of Spain the executive with all practicable speed has been assisting its people in the successive steps necessary to the establishment of a free and independent government prepared to assume and perform the obligations of international law which now rest upon the United States under the treaty of Paris. The convention elected by the people to frame a constitution is approaching the completion of its labors. The transfer of American control to the new government is of such great importance, involving an obligation resulting from our intervention and the treaty of peace, that I am glad to be advised by the recent act of congress of the policy which the legislative branch of the government deems essential to the best interests of Cuba and the United States. The principles which led to our intervention require that the fundamental law upon which the new government rests should be adapted to secure a government capable of performing the duties and discharging the functions of a separate nation, of observing its international obligations of protecting life and property, insuring order, safety and liberty, and conforming to the established and historical policy of the United States in its relation to Cuba.

Must Have Permanent Guarantees.

The peace which we are pledged to leave to the Cuban people must carry with it the guarantees of permanence. We became sponsors for the pacification of the island and we remain accountable to the Cubans, no less than to our own country and people for the reconstruction of Cuba as a free commonwealth on abiding foundations of right, justice, liberty and assured order. Our enfranchisement of the people will not be completed until free Cuba shall "be a reality not a name; a perfect entity, not a hasty experiment bearing within it self the elements of failure."

While the treaty of peace with Spain was ratified on the 6th of February, 1899, and ratifications were exchanged nearly two years ago, the congress has indicated no form of government for the Philippine Islands. It has, however, provided an army to enable the executive to suppress insurrection, restore peace, give security to the inhabitants and establish the authority of the United States throughout the archipelago. It has authorized the organization of native troops as auxiliary to the regular force. It has been advised from time to time of the acts of the military and naval officers in the islands of my action in appointing civil commissions of the instructions with which they were charged of their duties and powers, of their recommendations and of their several acts under executive commission, together with the very complete general information they have submitted. IN THE WORKHOUSE.

Ocie Geary, Well Known Here, Now in Retirement.

Ocie Geary is now an inmate of the Canton workhouse and she will remain there for several weeks to come. Ocie was arrested several times in this city for drunkenness and Mayor Davidson fined her each time, but she always managed to pay. She went to Steubenville, where she tried the same game, but it didn't work. The third time she appeared before Mayor Means he fined her $50 and costs and her trip to the works resulted.

Improving at Mt. Clemens.

A letter has been received by friends in this city from Oscar Bowles, who went to Mt. Clemens several days ago. Mr. Bowles had been suffering with rheumatism for a long time, and went to the resort in the hope of benefiting his health. The gentleman reports his condition as much improved.

fully set forth the conditions, past and present, in the islands, and the instructions clearly show the principles which will guide the executive until the congress shall, as it is required to do by the treaty, determine "the civil rights and political status of the native inhabitants." The congress having added the sanction of its authority to the powers already possessed and exercised by the executive under the constitution, thereby leaving with the executive the responsibility for the government of the Philippines, I shall continue the efforts already begun until order shall be restored throughout the islands and as fast as conditions permit will establish local governments, in the formation of which the full co-operation of the people has been already invited, and when established will encourage the people to administer them. The settled purpose, long ago proclaimed, to afford the inhabitants of the islands self-government as fast as they were ready for it will be pursued with earnestness and fidelity. Already something has been accomplished in this direction. The government's representatives, civil and military, are doing faithful and noble work in their mission of emancipation, and merit the approval and support of their countrymen. The most liberal terms of amnesty have already been communicated to the insurgents and the doorway is open for those who have raised their arms against the government for honorable submission to its authority. Our countrymen should not be deceived. We are not waging war against the inhabitants of the Philippine islands, Making War Against the United States.

A portion of them are making war against the United States. By far the greater part of the inhabitants recognize American sovereignty and welcome it as a guaranty of order and of security for life, property, liberty, freedom of conscience, and the pursuit of happiness. To them full protection will be given. They shall not be abandoned. We will not leave the destiny of the loyal millions in the islands to the disloyal thousands who are in rebellion against the United States. Order under civil institutions will come as soon as those who now break the peace shall keep it. Force will not be needed or used when those who make war against us shall make it no more. May it end without further bloodshed and there be ushered in the reign of peace to be made permanent by a government of liberty under law.

CONGRESS ADJOURNS.
Lawmakers Quit Work About Noon Today—Had Been in Session Sunday.
Washington, March 4.—Congress adjourned about noon today.
The first Sunday session of the Fifty-sixth congress was held by the senate Sunday. It will not appear in The Congressional Record as a session of Sunday, as the senate was working under the legislative day of Saturday, and will continue so to work until the session should be declared adjourned finally at noon today. Sunday's session began about 8 o'clock, the senate having been in recess since about 10:30 Saturday night. The galleries were packed with people here to attend the inauguration ceremonies, and, by reason of important business, there was a large attendance of senators.
After a spirited fight, both in conference and on the floor of the senate, the final conference report on the naval appropriation bill was agreed to, the senate receding from the one contested amendment authorizing the construction of three additional Holland submarine torpedo boats.
A conference report on the general deficiency bill was agreed to without comment. During the afternoon and evening the senate passed a large number of bills, among them being that to promote the safety of railroads.
Senator Pettigrew called attention of the senate to the fact that a bill had been lost. It was the act to promote the safety of railroad employees, the bill which passed Sunday after noon. It was said that the house had concurred in the senate amendments and the bill had been enrolled and signed by the speaker and lost between the houses. Mr. Pettigrew denounced it as an outrage, and charged that it had been "stolen" or "lost on purpose."
Mr. Lodge said he heard the clerk of the house announce the house action on the bill, but had been unable to find the bill anywhere.
On motion of Mr. Pettigrew the senate adopted a resolution ordering a re-enrollment of the bill and requesting the speaker to sign it.
The house, which was still in the legislative day of Friday, was in session from about 2 to 6 Sunday afternoon and last evening from about 8 o'clock it worked on into the night to dispose of the conference reports which crowded in upon it. The confusion and din of the floor of the speaker's gavel going incessantly to preserve the semblance of order must have made the proceedings unintelligible to them. There was a big fight during the afternoon over the senate amendment to the sundry civil bill, which linked together the fate of the St. Louis, Buffalo and Charleston exposition appropriations. Mr. Cannon chairman of the appropriations committee, led the fight against them and defeated a motion to concur. A resolution to appoint a special committee of seven members to visit Porto Rico, Cuba and the Philippines and report upon conditions raised the cry of "junketing trip" and was debated at intervals while conference reports were not before the house.

The house defeated by a vote of 139 nays to 84 years the resolution providing for a committee to visit Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines and report on the conditions there.

CALCUTTA CAR LINE.
An Improved Brake to Be Used When Service is Resumed Again.
It will be several weeks before the Calcutta road street car line is again placed in operation. Manager Healy stated this morning that he had closed a contract for a new brake to be used on the car on that line, and while it was expensive, it did not cost as much as wreck cars and other items of expense connected with wrecks.
The brake has been purchased subject to approval and can be returned if it does not prove satisfactory. It is an absolutely new thing for this section, but has been used on the Philadelphia suburban lines for two years.

A Great Military Play.
William Gillette's greatest play, "Secret Service," which is to be presented at the Grand Opera House on Thursday, March 14, deals with the civil war. So far as clashing sabres and rattling musketry are concerned, there is no real war in the play. The battlefield is never reached, but the story is based on the military operations around Richmond in the exciting days of the early '60's. The heroine is the beautiful daughter of a Confederate general, who is loved by two men. Although the hero and heroine have differences in sectional sympathy, love finally conquers all.

NEWS OF CHURCHES

Pastor Crowe Returns Thanks to His Congregation For Granting Him a Vacation.

MANY JOIN THE M. E. CHURCH

Revival Services so Successful That
They Will Be Continued—Special
Meetings of Other Denominations.
Religious Affairs In General.

At the Second Presbyterian church
yesterday morning, the pastor, Rev.
N. M. Crowe, very feelingly thanked the congregation for their great kindness in granting him a three-months' vacation, rendered necessary by the ill-health of his daughter. He not only spoke of this evidence of the goodness of his congregation, but also referred to the fact that his entire pastorate with that church had been characterized by the love and thoughtfulness of the people, not a ripple appearing along any of the church lines to mar
or hinder his work as a pastor.

Mr. Crowe preached from Jeremiah
2:13: "For my people have committed two evils; they have forsaken me,
the fountain of living waters, and hewed them out cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water." He said in part:

"It would seem that the accusation by the prophet against the people was severe, but it was very true. It was no stronger than was necessary to arouse them to duty, and to give them an incentive to return from their evil ways. This may seem an inappropriate text to be used in this day of great enlightenment and progress, and yet viewed from a purely spiritual standpoint, no magnifying glass is needed to discover that its truths are applicable even today when human thought and tendency are to do the same things of which the people of Israel were accused. In this busy, hurried life we are prone to not give sufficient attention to the church, and to the thought and purposes of God's house.

"The text gives us the idea of desertion. The people had gone away from and forsaken God. Is not that the sin of many people today? This was the crime of the prodigal—desertion, forsaking home and father. This text comes home very close to us. One of the great difficulties in the evangelization of the world is the coldness and indifference of the multitudes of God's supposed followers. People are satisfied with too little of godliness,

and Satan takes advantage of their coldness and lack of interest in righteousness and places them under heavy burdens. The devil is a most exacting taskmaster. He has no offer to make such as Christ offers, 'Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.' But life is not hopeless, the pleading voice
still cries out in the language of Job:
'Deliver him from going down to the pit: I have found a ransom.'

Large Accessions to the M. E. Church
Resulted From the Revival Services.

The revival services at the Methodist Episcopal church yesterday were very largely attended both morning and evening, and much good was accomplished. At the morning service 25 persons united with the church on probation, and at the evening meeting 16 were at the altar, 13 of the number being converted before the close of the service. Dr. Crawford preached a masterly sermon in the evening, touching upon the prodigal son.

It had been the intention to close the meetings yesterday, but owing to the intense interest manifested in the movement, it was deemed best to continue throughout the week. Services as usual tonight. Rev. G. Spreng, of Wellsville, will preach this evening.

THE EXPERT'S THEORY.

It Was Too Inclusive and Weakened
Him as a Witness.

One of the older members of the Baltimore bar tells this anecdote of the late Severn Teackle Wallis as illustrating the cleverness and sarcasm of Mr.
Wallis:

Mr. Wallis was defending the will of a wealthy testator, and, as the lawyers say, when the estate is large a lawyer
"will wrestle with a will with a will."
A prominent physician was called to testify for those contesting the will.
The doctor became restless under the lengthy and exhaustive cross examination of Mr. Wallis, and finally he petulantly exclaimed:

"Oh, Mr. Wallis, I believe the testator was insane."

Mr. Wallis kept his temper and said quietly: "Doctor, you are the first person who has ever intimated in or out of court that the testator was insane.
Why do you say he was insane?"

"I believe," the doctor replied, "that every man is more or less insane on
some one subject."

"Is it your deliberate professional opinion," Mr. Wallis then asked, "expressed here in court under oath, that every man is more or less insane on
some one subject?"

"Yes," the doctor replied; "I will say here under oath that from my reading, knowledge and experience I believe that every man is more or less insane
on some one subject."

Then Mr. Wallis said in that fine tone of sarcasm for which he was noted, "Doctor, has it ever occurred to you that you are insane on the subject of insanity?"

Immediately the doctor fired up and exclaimed, "But, Mr. Wallis, I am not insane."

Mr. Wallis arose and said: "Doctor, according to your own sworn theory,
you must be insane on some subject. I pronounce you insane on the subject of
insanity."

Court, jury and spectators laughed aloud, and nothing more was said about the testator being insane.—Baltimore Sun.

OLD DUTCH WERE CHOLERIC

They Called Each Other "Snappert-jes," and Even Worse.

What a contentious crowd the inhabitants of the village, then known as Breuckelen, now part of Brooklyn, was!

The early records are filled with reports of inquiries into the cause of rioting and disturbances of the peace.
The early court records consist largely of actions brought for slander and assault. It is recorded that a man was arrested for calling an official a "snap-pertje," another was put in jail, charged with having called his neighbor a
"dick beeste" and still another was clapped into jail for having called a certain official a "bloodsucker." Some of the old Dutch records make interesting reading.

And the court meted out justice in all these cases with a regard for common sense and a disregard for statute law that one cannot help but admire. One instance of curious adjustment of

penalties may be cited:

The village tavern keeper and a contentious woman both appeared before the court, asking justice. They had quarreled. The woman had accused the innkeeper of watering his brandy, and he in turn had applied an opprobrious epithet to the woman. The court after hearing the evidence adjudged both to be guilty. With rare discrimination in making the punishment fit the crime
the man was fined 6 gulden and the woman, who had impugned the quality of the brandy, was fined 20 gulden.

With hundreds of times the population today, the courts of Brooklyn do not have one-tenth the slander or assault cases that they had some 200 years ago, and, as for a riot, there has not been one of any magnitude even threatened in more than a score of years.—Brooklyn Eagle.

panied the body to the cemetery. Miss
